Pastors Urge Voters To Uphold Dry Laws At Polls

LAST APPEAL IS MADE FOR CANDIDATES

Rev. Warmer Drives Home
Arguments For Those Who Are Strictly Dry

M'FARLAND SPEAKS

Law Enforcement Stressed
By Presbyterian During
Sermon on Sunday

LARGE CONGREGATIONS at two of the leading churches in the county heard strong appeals from the pulpit yesterday for support of the Eighteenth Amendment and the men who are engaged in the fight during this campaign for the success of the great moral principles involved, and as citizens interested in the welfare of the youth and homes of the country were urged to express their approval of outstanding dry candidates at the polls tomorrow.

Climaxing a powerful law enforcement sermon with a dramatic appeal for the protection of the youth and homes of the nation that brought the great audience filling the church to capacity to its feet in an emotional response, the Rev. George Warmer, pastor of the First Methodist church, yesterday drove home convincing arguments for the election of dry candidates who are pledged to law enforcement, with an eloquent and logical address that swept the great congregation to enthusiastic response.

Dr. Warmer concluded his sermon with an appeal for protection of boys and girls of the state and county and creation of a bulwark to safeguard the homes from the assaults of wet interests, which he graphically illustrated by calling his young son to the pulpit and wrapping him in the American flag and the Christian banner and calling on his audience to support the great principles of government and right represented by these flags.

The influential church leader strongly endorsed the candidacy of Logan Jackson, Harry Westover, Milton Young and the principles on which they were making their fight for election. He asserted that it was time for the Christian people to take definite action upholding the Eighteenth amendment and its supplementary laws such as the Volstead act and the Wright law, and the men who are pledged openly and honestly and sincerely to the support of these laws.

Dr. Warmer also strongly complimented the Register and its editor, J. Frank Burke, for the courageous stand taken on the great moral questions before the people and commended Burke personally as a leader in the moral crusade.

"We must unite in supporting the dry leaders and cause at the polls Tuesday," he declared. "The issue is plainly defined and all Christians should have no hesitancy in voting for the men who have sincerely declared themselves for the great cause in which we are so vitally interested."

Dr. Warmer referred to the inefficiency and lack of enforcement of the law by the sheriff's office and said, "There is a well established rumor that between 700 and 800 cases of booze are being landed on our ocean front every week. Jernigan is a friend of mine and he has called on me intimating that I

BANDIT KILLED AFTER ROBBING BANK IN CITY

Six Pullets Pumped Into
His Body As He Flees
Across Boulevard

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—(UP)—A bank bandit died from six bullet wounds here today an hour after he had taken $1025 from a Bank of Italy branch and was shot as he fled across a busy intersection at Sunset Boulevard and Echo Park avenue.

Detective Lieutenant Jack Maimana and A. M. Woolman had been called to the vicinity shortly before the holdup when officials became suspicious when the man loitered across the street from the bank.

The bandit entered the bank with drawn revolver and forced five employees and a woman customer to line up facing a wall while he rifled the cages.

The two detectives arrived while the bandit was in the bank and they waited outside until he fled with the money stuffed in his pockets.

The bandit never regained consciousness and there was no way to identify him from his shabby clothing.

$500,000 TRIAL RESUMED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(UP)—Trial of the $500,000 suit brought against Gene Tunney for alleged breach of contract was resumed today after a perturbed week-end for Timothy J. Mara, who brought the suit.

Mara discovered in conversation with a man at a professional football game yesterday that an uncle of his, now dead, and Justice Peter A. Harting, who is trying the case, had married sisters.

He consulted his attorney, Martin Littleton, about this family connection with the jurist, and the two conferred in turn today with the judge and Emory R. Buckner, Tunney's attorney.

Buckner and Tunney found nothing harmful in this rather distant relationship, and insisted the trial proceed.

$5000 IN JEWELRY TAKEN BY 4 GUNMEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(UP)—Four gunmen held up 40 guests at a silver wedding anniversary party last night, shot 18-year-old Benjamin Glosser in the leg, stole jewelry worth more than $5000 and escaped.

The guests were seated about a table celebrating the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Walpert when the bandits entered and demanded that they be handed "all the money and jewelry in this room."

As the bandits left the room the leader fired a shotgun charge into the floor. Several shots glanced and struck Glosser in the knee.

TWO SISTERS, PLANE PILOT DIE IN FALL

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 3.—(UP)—An air mail pilot and two young women were burned to death in an airplane crash near here yesterday.

They were Harry Tegart, 24, Tottenham, Ont.; Miss Jean McColl, and Miss Kathleen McColl, sisters of Inglewood, Ont. The plane Tegart was piloting crashed on a farm and burst into flames before it could reach them.

Witnesses said Tegart appeared to be stunting just before the crash.

When dressed in the height of lounging fashion, a girl has to watch her step.

The bodies, riddled with bullets, were found sprawled on the floor after Peter Mazlak, proprietor of a grocery store beneath the apartment, discovered blood seeping through the wall.

Mazlak said he heard the shooting but decided to remain in bed because it was safer.

Young To Talk Twice In S. A. Tonight

Milton K. Young, Democratic candidate for governor on a law enforcement platform, will speak twice in Santa Ana today, winding up his campaign.

His first speech will be given at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the new educational building of the First Christian church, Sixth and Birch streets, as guest speaker for the Men's Community Bible class. The public is invited to attend the address.

The second address will be given over KREG at about 9:30 p. m. and probably will wind up the candidate's campaign here.

SEVERE GALES SWEEP ENGLISH IRISH COASTS

Passage Across Channel
By Boat and Airplane Is Cancelled Today

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(UP)—A severe autumnal storm which held the flying boat DO-X at Friedrichshafen, swept southern England and Ireland yesterday and continued with unabated force today.

Damage from high winds, lightning, hail and rain was reported from a wide section of the country. Life boats on the south coast responded to numerous calls for aid from distressed ships, but no deaths were reported.

Passage across the English channel by air was suspended and steamer service was delayed. The channel steamer Maid of Orleans was buffeted by heavy seas which smashed windows on the saloon deck. Four passengers and two members of the crew were injured.

A life boat put out from Benbridge, Isle of Wight, to stand by a Greek vessel in distress off Ventnor. The deal tug Lady Beatrice went to the assistance of a waterlogged sailing barge and brought the craft safely into Ramsgate harbor. A seaplane moored in Portland harbor capsized and sank.

The storm was unusually severe in southwest Essex. Automobiles were blown over in the streets and numerous pedestrians were knocked about by the gale. Houses were unrooted and trees and telegraph poles uprooted.

The highest wind velocity was reported from Cardington, home of the Royal airship works, where it reached 82 miles an hour during a temporary gust.

BOULOGNE, France, Nov. 3.—(UP)—Numerous fishing boats were reported missing in a storm in the English channel today.

The cross channel steamer Isle of Thanet was damaged by huge waves and two of the crew were injured. The boat carried British and American passengers.

Rain and wind of hurricane violence were reported inland. Motor traffic was delayed on many roads where trees were blown down by the storm.

The guests were seated about a table celebrating the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Walpert when the bandits entered and demanded that they be handed "all the money and jewelry in this room."

GAS EXPLOSION MENACES AREA IN KANSAS CITY

Flames Shoot 300 Feet in Air and Fire Rivers
Run in Streets

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—(UP)—Fire, following an explosion at the bulk plant of the White Eagle Oil and Refining company here, today was menacing a large area in the center of Kansas City's oil and gasoline storage district.

Firemen fought with all available apparatus against the flames. The explosion, occurring in a 2,000-gallon gasoline tank, sent flames shooting 300 feet into the air. Blazing rivulets of gasoline flowed in every direction. Ten large gasoline tanks, near the one which exploded, were in the center of the menaced area and firemen momentarily expected they would blow up.

Counties officials and experienced politicians are making the final efforts of the present campaign today, as the time for casting ballots in favor of candidates or amendment measures approaches. Polls in the 189 precincts in Orange county open at 6 a. m. tomorrow morning where the more than 50,000 registered voters will have an opportunity to determine the questions and issues of the campaign which is now closing.

County officials and experienced politicians are predicting that there will not be the large vote cast at the general election that there was at the primary last August, when approximately 60 per cent of the registered voters exercised their rights.

The Democrats closed the campaign as they opened it—with high hopes and a hammering at the conduct of the administration during the business crisis. Through their efficient publicity bureau here a statement was issued by Governor Walter F. George, Democrat, Georgia, charging the house Republicans with destruction of the country for the next two years.

By sundown tomorrow their collective voice will be heard through the ballot box in 47 states where 431 members of the house and 34 senators as well as 31 state governors, are being elected.

paign as they opened it—with high hopes and a hammering at the conduct of the administration during the business crisis. Through their efficient publicity bureau here a statement was issued by Governor

Walter F. George, Democrat, Georgia, charging the house Republicans with destruction of the country for the next two years.

Interest in the general election in this county centers in the race between Mayor James Ralph, of San Francisco, the Republican nominee, who is regarded as a wet and liberal, and Milton K. Young, of Los Angeles, the Democratic candidate who has taken an emphatic stand for the Eighteenth amendment and supporting measures, and who is expected to receive strong support from church and moral agencies who are vitally interested in this great issue.

Early reports indicated only one person had been injured seriously, Joe Myers, a mechanic for the White Eagle company, who was standing near the tank when it exploded, was thrown nearly 60 feet and was terribly burned before aid could reach him. Physicians said his condition was critical.

As firemen fought the blaze with chemicals residents in the neighborhood were evacuating their homes.

Denial clouds of smoke hung over the entire area, hindering the fire fighting activity, into which had been thrust every fire company in the city.

Gasoline poured into storm sewers in the district and ignited, flames shooting high from manholes and blowing covers into the air.

Then a second major explosion was heard. Although firemen and observers could not see clearly, it was believed another large tank had exploded, adding additional thousands of gallons of gasoline to the flames.

Squads of police were rushed into homes of the neighborhood, ordering residents to evacuate at once. Ambulances were being held ready at the edge of the danger zone.

The explosion, which employees said occurred when a truck, backing from a garage broke a gasoline line, came just as a passenger train was entering the yards and was passing the plants. Passengers on the train had miraculously escaped as the force of the blast shattered windows of two Pullmans and a diner. Stewards and W. P. McConnell, Fort Worth, Texas conductor, said no one was injured by flying glass.

Smoke from the blaze caused semi-darkness throughout most of the city, although it was a cloudy day.

Dry Show Strength

Support for the League candidates has been increasing during the closing days of the campaign and many of those who are closely in touch with the situation believe that Orange county voters will cast a majority of the ballots for these men at the polls tomorrow. It is felt that this is almost assured if church organizations and moral agencies get out their vote for these men who stand on great principles.

Another race for county office that is attracting considerable interest, is that for the post of treasurer, held for the past 20 years by

SERIOUS BURNS ON HALLOWE'EN FATAL TO GIRL

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at Fullerton for Velma Nelson, 6 years old, of 411 Eucalyptus avenue, Brea, who died Saturday night at the Fullerton general hospital from burns received Hallowe'en night when her dress ignited from a lantern.

The child was playing with a paper pumpkin with a candle in it when her dress suddenly caught fire, while she was playing in the yard of her home. A neighbor, J. G. Crooke, saw the accident and rushed to the girl, rolling her in a rug extinguishing the flames.

The child then was taken to a Brea physician and later to the Fullerton general hospital, where she died, Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The child was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson, of Brea.

Election Of Dry Candidates Urged By Orange Pastor

The Rev. Walter B. Cole, pastor of the Methodist church at Orange, urged members of his congregation yesterday during the morning service to support the dry cause and men interested in law enforcement at the election Tuesday. He urged that candidates who have the endorsement of the W. C. T. U. and law enforcement organizations be given the support of Christian citizens and recommended Logan Jackson for sheriff and Harry Westover for district attorney.

LUCAS DENIES IRVINE GAVE $2500 TO CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Eleventh hour propaganda sent through the mail by supporters of George Jeffrey, candidate for supervisor for the fifth district, today was characterized by Stuart Lucas, opponent of Jeffrey, as being a last desperate effort by the latter to confuse the voters of the fifth district, by false statements.

The propaganda alleges mud-slinging on the part of Lucas and calls attention to the high moral position taken by the Jeffrey supporters and their claims that $2500 was contributed by the Irvine interests toward Lucas' primary campaign. "The blackest kind of mud," said Lucas, who continued:

"I would be very glad to have the support of Mr. Irvine and any other citizens of this district but the result of the election in the Irvine district at the primary does not bear out the contention of the Jeffrey crowd."

"I received 24 votes at Irvine to 84 for Mr. Jeffrey. This result speaks for itself. Need I say anything more?"

'LEMON ON LEMON HEIGHTS' MAKING VOTES HOURLY FOR LUCAS, SAYS KREG SPEAKER

The "Lemon on Lemon Heights" is making votes hourly for Stuart Lucas, candidate for supervisor in the fifth district, declared Chester Smith, Laguna Beach rancher, in an address over KREG this morning, winding up the Lucas campaign.

Smith was referring to the La Loma road built during October and leading from Newport boulevard to a blind end after passing the homes of a few outstanding supporters of Supervisor George Jeffrey, who is seeking re-election. "Taxpayers are wondering if the La Loma road was built for the benefit of a few or for the benefit of the people in the fifth district," Smith said.

Smith's talk follows:

"In regard to the fight in the fifth supervisorial district between Mr. Lucas and Mr. Jeffrey, the swing of sentiment is certainly with Lucas. In Tustin the 'Lemon on Lemon Heights' is making votes hourly for Lucas. Taxpayers are wondering if the La Loma road was built for the benefit of a few or for the people in the fifth district."

In the harbor district, after the support of Lawrence Wilkinson and others of the old Wallace supporters have come out for Lucas, the sentiment is crystallizing for him.

"The stand for Lucas for holding down taxes by opposing oppressive bond issues and his reminder that 'Taxes are high, and money scarce,' has struck the popular fancy, and his battle cry of 'I am no man's man, and wear no man's collar,' has appealed to the independent voter.

The attempt to discredit his statement that taxes have increased 600 to 900 per cent in the last 10 years has fallen flat when the voter has looked up his last receipt and found Mr. Lucas' statement to be borne out by facts.

"Much Lucas money has found no takers. It is currently reported from among those who follow election probabilities.

"All these things tend to the effect that the independent voters are aroused to the point where they are going to the polls and support the man who devoted his time and efforts to upholding their interests. The work of the 'road-builder' on La Loma drive has been commented on freely by the voters in every part of the district.

"The check dam district and the water reclamation project are finding an ever increasing number of adherents.

"I want to warn the voters against any eleventh hour propaganda that the desperate Jeffrey coterie may put forth, and to call to your attention that Mr. Lucas challenged Mr. Jeffrey 10 days ago to meet him face to face in debate on any question, and that he has refused to do so.

"In this last appeal, I request you voters to put your ballot in the box tomorrow for Mr. Lucas in the name of square dealing, progress and economy."

Eleventh hour propaganda sent through the mail by supporters of George Jeffrey, candidate for supervisor for the fifth district, today was characterized by Stuart Lucas, opponent of Jeffrey, as being a last desperate effort by the latter to confuse the voters of the fifth district, by false statements.

The propaganda alleges mud-slinging on the part of Lucas and calls attention to the high moral position taken by the Jeffrey supporters and their claims that $2500 was contributed by the Irvine interests toward Lucas' primary campaign.

"I would be very glad to have the support of Mr. Irvine and any other citizens of this district but the result of the election in the Irvine district at the primary does not bear out the contention of the Jeffrey crowd."

"I received 24 votes at Irvine to 84 for Mr. Jeffrey. This result speaks for itself. Need I say anything more?"

"I have no idea how many hundred volunteers in the county have volunteered their services in a dry campaign and who will work on election day for a dry vote, for victory is apparent," he continued.

"I have always been interested in the wet and dry campaign and it is not necessary to make my stand known for it is already well known to the people of Orange County. We know that many of the criminals have been brought in and have not been convicted, and should you choose to elect me to office I hope to put the fear of God in the hearts of some of these violators."

Ralph C. Smedley, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Santa Ana was the speaker of the evening.

"Never is there a time when we should learn the meaning of neighborliness as in campaign times," said Smedley. "For however we may differ in our views or oppose one another, we should remember that we are still brothers, and neighbors and friends. As Christians we can pray for our opponents even though we cannot vote for them."

"There have been 'prohibit' laws ever since the beginning of civilization. It is not a new law, for long before Moses brought down the tablets of stone from the mountain there were 'prohibit' laws. There are many 'prohibit' laws on our statute books and yet the prohibition law is the only one attacked and asked to be repealed because it is not enforced. If this law is to be repealed, then why not repeal all the 'prohibit' laws, for they do not prevent the continued breaking of them also."

"It was the Christian people who have made the prohibition problem an issue in this election, otherwise there would not have been an issue.

"When we got the 18th amendment we sat down and slept, thinking that our job had been finished, but the other folk have not stopped or slept on the job, for they have been busy until the present crisis has arisen. We must make the public realize in spite of this terrible propaganda to control the monster of drink that the only safe America is a dry America.

"We must repaint the picture of the filth and poverty of the old time saloon to the youth of today, who are unfamiliar with it, for in a few years from now they will have to settle the matter of whether the law should be repealed or not and we must prepare them to face the situation clearly. It is time to go back to the educational program for the incoming voters, for in many high schools now Frances E. Willard and other worthy crusaders are being made light of and are regarded as fools.

"Few people realize that practically all mountain songs are of English derivation," Powell said. "They are 'Turkey in the Straw,' for instance, is merely a variant of the English 'Old Mother Oxford.'

"My young friend, Hilton Ruffy, of Richmond, composed a dance called 'Hobby on the Green.' It is meeting with remarkable receptions whenever I play it in my recitals, but Ruffy knew nothing of English folk music when he wrote it and doesn't know just how it got into his mind. I think heredity did it. There must have been somehow an outcropping of the spirits and personalities of his English ancestors when he put that music on paper."

BOYHOOD FRIENDS IN IOWA MEET HERE AFTER 55 YEARS

Memories of a friendship formed some 55 years ago when both men were youths back in Staceyville, Ia., were suddenly and unexpectedly revived here a few days ago under the shady trees of Birch park when James Mackin, 75, a recent arrival from Iowa, ran up against John Falvey, 74, his old boyhood friend.

At first, not having seen each other for more than 50 years, the men did not show any sign of recognition. Commenting on the unusually hot weather prevailing here last week, Mackin ventured an observation that this was not the kind of weather they have back in Iowa at this time of the year. Soon the conversation took them to places back in the Hawkeye state. Falvey remarked that he himself was an Iowan.

"Did you ever know a boy by the name of Jim Mackin?" queried Falvey, adding that he and the Mackin lad had been good friends.

"You are looking at him now," came the reply from Mackin.

Mackin is the father of Mrs. C. J. Gibbons, wife of the proprietor of the Santa Ana cafe, North Main street, and Falvey is living here with a sister.

REV. HARDING DENOUNCES WET NEWSPAPERS AND APPEALS FOR ELECTION OF DRY CANDIDATES

Before a large crowd that filled the church to capacity, the Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, last night denounced wet candidates and issued a call for support of the dry cause and its supporters at the election Tuesday, in a preface to the evening sermon. The subject of the talk was "Wet Newspapers and Their Wet Candidates."

"The wet newspapers and periodicals of America," said the Rev. Mr. Harding, "which might be called the scavengers and scandal-mongers of our communities, have contributed as much or more toward the campaign of the wets than any other agency. Many of these publications are in the hands of cheap or little men and concerns. Instead of contributing to the good of the community, they are dominated by the 'big thieves' and the liquor interests of the land. The poll of the Literary Digest was one of the gigantic plans used by those interests. Why do such publications pursue such a course? The answer is 'big money,' and 'money makes the mare go.' They are like some folk in our own county who recently, after making speeches before dry groups and organizations, have later endorsed wet candidates. Such circumstances support the old saying that money is the true measure of a man. Pressure is brought to bear; threats are made; they chart their courses accordingly.

"When I was a lad on the farm," continued the Rev. Mr. Harding, "it was a part of my work to put milk in bottles and feed the orphaned lambs. My mother told me, 'when they are getting the milk, they wiggle their tails.' So, remember, when you see a man 'jump the fence' be he pettifogger or preacher, be assured that he is 'getting his milk.'

"Recently I read a letter with no personal signature," he declared, "but bearing the printed names of a number of splendid citizens of our city and county, endorsing a wet candidate. Having my doubts concerning some of those endorsements, I determined to call on some of the individuals personally. The first one I interviewed was Attorney Horace Head, who stated to me, and has since stated publicly, that he was never consulted regarding the use of his name in that connection. I went no further, feeling sure that if they had been dishonest in regard to one name, they probably had dealt no more honestly with others.

"Some of you have read in a Hearst publication, a thrust at Milton K. Young, Democratic candidate for governor. All I have to say about any of the Hearst papers is this—whatever they are for, good people can well afford to be against, with little fear of missing the proper course; and whatever they are against, good people can well afford to endorse.

"James Ralph Jr. and his friends do not deny that they are wet, and wet Republicans are howling 'party loyalty' to other Republicans whom they think are dumb. But these wet Republicans are 'dumb' enough in their literature and speeches to advocate the election of Walsh, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant governor, because he is wet. I heard one of their campaign managers say, 'Mr. Ralph might die in office and the governorship would fall into the hands of Merriam, a dry, and that would be a calamity.' Furthermore, many of these Republicans who now yell 'party loyalty' supported Al Smith in his campaign for the presidency, because he was wet.

"If you are in doubt as to how to vote, study the lineup. Which crowd do you prefer to be placed in here, or at the judgment? Who wants the repeal of the Volstead act? It is not the drunkard crying for his tonic or mug. It is one of the most gigantic trusts of today, with national and international connections in purse and politics. They are drunk on money. Many of them were stung with this 'money bee' during the World war. Just imagine great bankers more interested in booze than in their banking! The liquor business means big money made quickly. As Judas Iscariot sold his Lord, this crowd would sell not only their integrity, but our homes, our wives, and our children into poverty and crime.

"They are appealing strongly to labor. 'We shall give you work and high wages,' they declare. But these liquor interests have done more to bring about the present depression than any other crowd, and now they would use it as a means of accomplishing their wicked ends. If the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors would bring prosperity, what is wrong with Canada at this time? Recently I was near the Canadian border and talked with a number of people from British Columbia, Alberta, and Saskatchewan, three great dominions. They told me that conditions there are far worse it," those taking part being Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jerome, Mr. and Mrs. Ira MacNames, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Rouse, Warren Ingham, Mrs. William Seeger, Mrs. Dan Henry, Mrs. Henthorne and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Beard. Musical numbers were two trumped solo by Robert Moll, of Yorba Linda, and two numbers by the Solesbee trio, Dorothy, Clarabelle and Arnold, and there was also a speech by W. Lillie. Mrs. Barnhill was in charge of devotions at the afternoon meeting and talked on the difference between human and divine love. Reports of committees were heard and it was voted to hold the next meeting November 20 as the regular date falls on Thanksgiving day.

Work for the afternoon consisted of making a baby layette and finishing the embroidered quilt.

A round table discussion on "Leisure Time" will be featured at the next meeting of the Placentia Parent-Teacher association Tuesday in the auditorium of the Bradford avenue school. Mrs. L. M. Smith is in charge of the discussion. Mrs. E. W. Schade, chairman of the membership committee, announces that 265 members have been secured during the drive.

Teachers of the Placentia schools were entertained Tuesday evening at a Hallowe'en bridge party at the home of Miss Norma Brastad, Miss Helen Wilson being the hostess. Prizes were won by Mrs. Ruby Strong, Miss Mabel Anderson and Mrs. Zella Salveson.

Schenck, Miss Katherine Miles and Miss Thelma Burdette.

Those present were Mrs. O. D. Beck, Mrs. Karl Kiolstad, Mrs. Schenck, Miss Alyf Yarbrough, Miss Brastad, Miss Miles, Mrs. Agnes Ginter, Miss Burdette, Miss Carolyn Strong, Miss Mabel Anderson and Mrs. Zella Salveson.

1800 Attend Lutheran Services In Orange Church

L. A. PASTOR IN TALK ON NATURE OF GOOD WORKS

ORANGE, Nov. 3.—Eighteen hundred Lutherans of Orange county and Long Beach gathered at St. John's Lutheran church Sunday afternoon to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the first Lutheran confession presented to the imperial diet of the German Estates at Augsburg, Germany, on the afternoon of June 25, 1530.

The large church auditorium was filled to capacity and nearly 600 visitors were taken care of in Walker hall which had been connected with the church by a public address system.

The Rev. R. E. Kuehnert, of Los Angeles, delivered the principal address, speaking on "The Nature of Good Works." The speaker set forth the impossibility of gaining the favor of God and eternal life in heaven with personal effort and good works, because God demands absolute perfection and man is unable to be perfect.

"If it were possible to reach heaven by our own efforts," said the speaker, "then Christmas with the birth of the Savior and the angel's message of joy is the greatest farce; then Good Friday with its cruel suffering and death of God's Son of Calvary is the greatest mistake in history; then Easter with its resurrection of the crucified Christ has no meaning whatever. It all would be more than useless, for man could have done all of that for himself. But even though man is saved by the grace of God through faith in Christ Jesus, yet good works are necessary as the fruit of such faith."

The Rev. O. Henkel, of Fontana, spoke in the German language, briefly portraying the glory of the Augsburg Confession in its clear and concise statement of Biblical truth and its strict obedience to Scriptural doctrine. He also paid a glowing tribute to the confessors at Augsburg, who risked their lands and crowns, their body and life to confess their faith and hope.

A children's chorus of about 200 voices gathered from the parochial schools of St. Paul's in Olive, St. John's and Emmanuel's in Orange, and from the Sunday schools of Trinity in Santa Ana and Zion in Anaheim, effectively rendered an anthem under the direction of E. T. Pringle, principal of Immanuel's school.

W. Battermann of St. John's school directed the combined mixed chorus of 75 voices in a well rendered anthem.

The Rev. E. H. Kreidt, of St. Paul's church, Olive, read the altar service.

Seated on the speaker's platform were the Revs. R. E. Kuehnert of Los Angeles; O. Henkel, of Fontana; E. H. Kreidt, of Olive; A. Bode, of St. John's, Orange, who also made the announcements; E. Joestling, of Orange; William Ruff, of Orange; M. Behrendt, of Long Beach; G. Groenow, of Orange; The Revs. H. S. Schaefer, of Anaheim; William Schmoeck, of Santa Ana, and H. Heinlein, of Orange, presided at the overflow meeting in Walker hall.

ABUNDANT LIFE DISCUSSED BY DR. W. M. TIPPLE

VILLA PARK, Nov. 3.—At the morning service at the Villa Park Community church yesterday, Harry Skiles spoke briefly on the political situation. The pastor, Dr. W. M. Tipple, spoke on the subject "Abundant Life."

The text of the sermon was from John 10:10, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." The pastor said: "Much is being said about the tendencies and slackness of our modern age about humanism and changing thought in religion. Sometimes we think to exalt man is to tear down God. We wonder which is the real truth.

"But why are we troubled? Do we need fear for our day? Is it possible for man to get away from God? Is it possible for truth to die? Can men change the law of 12 years?

"My answer is, no! Nevertheless man has a perfect right to feel exalted. Why? Because he is made in the image of God; because he is endowed with His divine attributes; because he is given dominion over all things. The pendulum may swing too far. But it will swing back again. No one can doubt or cheat the universe. Inferiority and weakness has been taught too long. Thinking weakness begets weakness. Know thyself," says the word. Claim your rightful heritage.

"We believe God if we think man can really get away from Him. It is true a new and higher value is being placed upon humanity. We must live in our age and not in the dark ages of long ago. We have studied the past long enough. Flaying learned the great lessons let us now apply them to life and tasks of today and tomorrow. It should be possible to teach religion to our children in newer, fresher, more vital ways to find God here and now in our world—to hold one another to walk in the ways of an enlightened, exalted beautiful spiritual life without the ancient conceptions. Man is a part of God as the drop of water is a part of the ocean. God who is working over and above and through man can take care of His own.

"Did you ever sit and watch the twilight glow fade out of the sky and the stars appear one by one? Did your thoughts ever turn to the remarkable scientific discoveries of man, in the heavens and in the earth? Did you ever wonder why man should go so much work and search? Why isn't he contented to take the easiest way? Why should we work so hard to establish one tiny scientific fact? By so doing has he found God's truth? Did you ever think that because he is so closely related to God he does all of this? God in man prompting him. As a son of God he has a right to know. The human soul is ever reaching toward a closer union with its spiritual partner. There is no dividing line between natural and spiritual. God is in all. So long as someone is to be discovered man will continue to search. Also the soul of man must search until he comes to a realization of his oneness with God.

"The big thing is that man is going on. God and His laws are changeless. The eternal and unseen are about us and within us. This power is man's to use, if he knew it. Going with it, in harmony with it, he is so safe. But going against it, he comes to grief. When man realizes that all life is one—all life God's life—himself a part of that life, then the whole way of life, is changed. No longer are forms and creeds all important. No longer does he feel himself weak, helpless and inferior. He is in possession of the "Life more abundant." His whole life flows out as a current of love and sympathy toward humanity and all creation. We may modify our creeds, beliefs, broaden our vision—one thing remains unchanged. The need of the human soul for God from which it springs.

"God is in everything—working in and through all life; children behind all forward impulses—the one Thinker-Worker-Infinite Mind of the universe—Infinite Love and the All in All.

"Man must grow or stagnate and die. Thought cannot be bound. It will eventually burst every form and shield. Religion itself cannot die. It is God speaking in the hearts of His children. So we do not need to fear. Forms may change. Institutions may rise and fall. But the soul abides. The human soul is always reaching out toward a closer relation with the Divine."

Miss Alberta Maust is spending the week end with her mother at LaVerne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Nelson and children, of Artesia street, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lawrence, of Santa Ana, Sunday.

Hallowe'en parties were enjoyed in several of the rooms at the Grand avenue school Friday, including Miss Trundy's first grade, Miss Mabel Boyer's 5-1, and Miss McRae's 5-2.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Nov. 3—Leaving Los Angeles yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Hector Magerman are now enroute to New York, from which port they will sail on November 7 to return to their native Belgium, following an absence of 12 years.

It was at the close of the war that Mr. and Mrs. Magerman decided to leave war-ridden Belgium and migrate to America to attempt to regain all they had lost in the war. Leaving their two small daughters with Mrs. Magerman's parents, they made their way to California and for the last eight years have resided on the Christopher land, west of Westminster, where Mr. Magerman has been one of the extensive bean and sugar beet growers of the section.

A recent message that the oldest daughter was ill decided Mr. and Mrs. Magerman to make the long planned trip at this time as they are joining their two daughters, Esther, 19 years of age, and Marie, 18 years, who are eagerly awaiting the arrival of their people—Marie in the convent where she is in school, and Esther with the grandparents at Brussels, where she has been since her illness.

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Magerman on the interesting trip to Belgium where it is possible the family may remain for two years, are the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Magerman, Frank, Valentine, Zoe, Bertha, Robert, Jansine and Helen, all of whom are native Americans.

Mr. Robert Palice and Mr. Larro, who has taken over Mr. Magerman's ranch equipment and has leased the ranch, accompanied the family to Los Angeles Sunday evening to see them off for New York and Antwerp.

Mrs. Anna Campbell and son and daughter were entertained as dinner guests Thursday evening at the Charles Roucheville home at Buena Park.

Christian Science Lecture

By ALBERT F. GILMORE, C. S. B., of BOSTON, MASS.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Mr. Albert F. Gilmore, C. S. B., of Boston, Mass., a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture, entitled "Christian Science: The Religion of the Perfect Man," Sunday afternoon, in the church edifice, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Santa Ana. Mr. Gilmore spoke substantially as follows:

The nature of man and his relation to God is a problem to which profound thought has long been given. Man's origin and destiny have been subjects of searching investigation and, for the most part, carried on from a material standpoint. Evidence presented by the physical senses has been accepted as reliable, and the inquiry, therefore, has been limited to outward appearance.

It is the common belief that man's origin is wholly material and that he enters this plane of consciousness only through the gateway of physical birth. Hence it does not seem strange or illogical that the awakening sense of a little child, since they too are material, should bear witness to the most gigantic, the most far-reaching, the most egregious, aye, the most tenacious of all errors, the belief that man is material.

If this wholly erroneous concept of man accepted in childhood, and entertained and pursued throughout human experience, be true, how hopeless would be man's destiny! How encompassed, restricted, and meaningless is life, if it begins in the travail of mortal birth only to end in misery and death! It is of little wonder that Job of old, still dwelling amid the mazes of mortal belief, should have cursed the day that he was born. "For man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward," was his picturesque characterization of human life. "Woe is me!" must likewise be the anguished cry of all poor mortals who look upon existence as measured by the brief span between the cradle and the grave. It was this false sense of life which led the Psalmist to declare man's days to be few and full of trouble. Of the manifest injustice which seems to befall mortals, of their woes, hardships, and unbearable burdens, the poets have sung ever since the language of poetry was developed.

When Plato described man as a two-legged animal without feathers, Diogenes plucked a cock and threw it into the Academy, saying, "This is Plato's man." Thereupon, Plato added to his description, "with broad, flat tails." Viewed from a Christian scientific standpoint, Diogenes' offering was as near the truth about man as was Plato's with its high-sounding phrase,

THE REAL MAN

When viewed from a material basis alone, human existence is blank and intolerable. But thanks be to God, the Father, the curtain has been lifted, the dark clouds have been rolled away and the eternal peaks of everlasting Life stand revealed, white and glistening before our entranced gaze, beautiful beyond our dearest imaginings, radiant beyond our highest expectancy. Through divine revelation, there unfolds to us what Mrs. Eddy has described in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 264), as "all the glories of earth and heaven and man;" the beauty of holiness, of being in its primal and everlasting grandeur. It is of this Life, the true Life; of this man, the real, the only man, that we are privileged to learn through reason and revelation, as set forth in Christian Science. Through the study of divine Science alone can we lay hold of the truth about man as he really is; of man as the veritable son of God, of the truth about ourselves. Did not John, the beloved of Jesus, declare, "Now are we the sons of God"? Not of our material sense of selfhood did he declare this, but of our true selves, God's likeness.

SPIRITUAL SENSE

In this intensive study of man, let us be assured that the physical senses can lend no aid, for neither physical sense nor so-called mortal mind knows aught of the real man. It is only through the spiritual senses that one learns of the real man, the son of God, for only through spiritual sense the great facts of existence are revealed. This raises the question, What is spiritual sense, what is its use, and how is it developed? Mrs. Eddy (Science and Health, p. 293) says of this: "Spiritual sense, contradicting the material senses, involves intuition, hope, faith, understanding, fruition, reality;" and again on page 306, "The myriad forms of mortal thought made manifest as matter, are not more distinct nor real to the material senses than are the soul-created forms to spiritual sense, which cognizes Life as permanent."

In view of this statement, how important that we develop spiritual sense! Why? Because in no other way can we learn about God, the Father, and man, the son. Let us then cultivate and develop the intuitive sense, the ability to recognize and receive the messages of divine Mind without the process of reason, to hear the "still small voice" of Truth, and hearing it to heed it; let us cherish hope a main spring in our demonstration; understanding, the knowledge which is acquired only through righteous prayer; fruition, the spiritual vision, the purified consciousness which cognizes only the things of God; reality, realization of spiritual perfection into which enters no element, phase, or factor of materiality. Thus we cultivate spiritual sense, which knows only spiritual good, the presence of God and His universe, including perfect man. This way of spiritual sense all must travel in order to gain the true concept of man, the truth about ourselves as the children of God.

THE NATURE OF MAN

With this preliminary, let us turn for a moment to the Christian Science textbook for guidance. The fullest definition of man given in consecutive statement appears on page 475, a definition so complete as to constitute a description. Let us examine it. In response to the question, "What is man?" it is stated first of all, that man is not made of meat, blood, bones, and other material elements." How interesting to note that this definition begins with a negative! Because mankind is always confronted by an argument on the side of matter, at the very outset, this testimony, which mortal mind is so constantly presenting, is refuted, utterly denied. "Man is not matter" forces the issue at once. The battle is on. Then follows the assertion that the Scriptures inform us that man is made in God's image and likeness, and by no stretch of the imagination can that image be conceived of as material. Why? Since God is Spirit, Infinite Spirit, His likeness must be spiritual. How completely and logically does Mrs. Eddy base her argument upon Scriptural authority. The Scriptures say so; hence it must be true. To this devoted disciple of Truth, Scriptural authority is the clear concept of reflection. The substance and character of God's reflection deeply concerns us all, for it involves the age-old problem, What is man? What man is, his origin and destiny, are explained in the understanding of reflection. This understanding fully answers the query of the Persian poet, raised in the long ago as to man's origin and destiny!

How does man include all right ideas, while each retains its own identity? If we turn to mathematics for convenient illustration, we find that every number above one is made up of units. For example, the number two is made up of two units, two ones, yet each unit or one maintains its own identity and value. Three is made up of two and one more, or three units; but the fact of their being incorporated in the number three does not destroy their identity as units. The number one thousand derives its value from the intrinsic value of each of the thousand units of which it is compounded. If we count objects of any kind, apples for example, because they are grouped in twos or threes, or thousands, it does not change the identity of each; each is still an apple, yet the number three includes three ones or two and one, that is, all the lesser units which constitute the number; and so the larger numbers even to infinity include the units which constitute them, while each unit retains its own identity and value.

Thus the compound idea, man, includes all right ideas; the greater includes the lesser, that is, all lesser divine ideas; and in the strict sense, since there is no Mind but God, there are none but divine ideas. Christian Science thus corresponds precisely with Scripture. In Genesis we read, "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creeps upon the earth;" and that the divine plan was carried out we are assured in a later verse, which declares that dominion over the lesser creatures bestowed by God upon man was without limit or qualification.

MAN AS IDEA

Then, in order more thoroughly to describe man, approach is made from another viewpoint. Since God is Mind, infinite Mind, man, God's expression, is idea. How else could Mind that is, divine consciousness, express itself except in ideas, since idea is that of which Mind is conscious? And man being Mind's full expression must be idea. But the idea of Mind is spiritual. Hence, the inevitable conclusion: "man is not physical;" that is, man possesses no element of corporeality. Man is not a material structure. Man is idea, not a cold abstraction, but the image of divine Love. How beautiful! As idea, not merely intellectual, in the common significance of that word, but as divine idea, man is possessed of all the warmth of infinite Love, the Love which is all-inclusive, all-pervasive, all-compassionate, infinitely kind, giving all and asking nothing in return. How great is God's man! How wonderful! How infinite his possibilities!

In order to grasp something of the deep significance of man as idea, let us examine this word, learn somewhat of its substance and meaning. Substance is that of which a thing is composed, and we learn in Christian Science that Spirit is the only real substance, for Spirit is infinite. The substance of an idea is not matter, we are assured, for Mrs. Eddy informs us that divine Mind creates its likeness in ideas, and that the substance of an idea is very unlike the supposed substance of matter, which is non-intelligent. What, then, is the substance of an idea, as that word is used in Christian Science, in other words, what is the substance of man, God's perfect idea? Webster defines idea thus, "A real likeness, or representation;" also, "an embodiment of the essence of something." How accurately do these definitions describe man as idea, as God's likeness. His perfect representation, because man images forth all the divine qualities.

Moreover, man as idea embodies the essence of something and that something is Spirit, for man is Spirit's likeness. To encompass mentally the substance of idea, its essence, is our necessity in order to gain an adequate concept of ourselves, of the perfect man. Urgent is our need to lay hold of the substance of man; to see him as substantial, perfect, co-existent and coeternal with God. In no other way can we obey the injunction of the ancient philosopher, "Know thyself." So important is this, that it is worthy of our utmost seeking, for our success as demonstrators of spiritual truth in no small measure depends upon our grasp of Spirit as the substance of man. Indeed, it is our very salvation, for only as we realize the truth about man shall we see ourselves as free from material restrictions. This is the very process whereby we gain eternal life.

MAN AS COMPOUND IDEA

In the definition of man under consideration there follows a statement so sweeping in its significance as to startle mortal mind from its limited sense of man, a statement that no one with a constricted sense of God's creation could have made. Man is the compound idea of God, including all right ideas." Marvelous statement!

How can man include all right ideas while at the same time each idea of Mind retains its own individuality, its own individuality? That each idea, from the least to the greatest, does retain its own identity, we are emphatically assured. Creation is composed of spiritual ideas and their identities, and these ideas are embraced in the infinite Mind, and reflected forever. We also learn that in the range of these spiritual ideas from the infinitesimal, that is from the least, to infinity, the greatest, the highest identities are men and women, the sons and daughters of God. And we are also assured (Science and Health, p. 70), that divine Mind maintains all its perfect identities, as eternal and distinct, as ever identical, even "from a blade of grass to a star." How wonderful, indeed, is man!

It must be evident even from this brief discussion that one cannot gain an adequate understanding of man unless he has a clear concept of reflection. The substance and character of God's reflection deeply concerns us all, for it involves the age-old problem, What is man? What man is, his origin and destiny, are explained in the understanding of reflection. This understanding fully answers the query of the Persian poet, raised in the long ago as to man's origin and destiny!

Here, in words all may understand, is plainly set forth the precise method by which eternal life may be gained—gained here and now. Learning the truth about God and man, gaining an understanding of Life, reveals man as immortal; it reveals to man his perfect selfhood, as God's likeness, His own image. How definitely is set before us the work we must do in order to live forever! Mortals do not die into heaven and eternal life; rather do they live into eternal existence. They do not, in the parlance of the insurance men, die to win, but live to win man's permanent and eternal glory, the glory bestowed of the Father.

THE PERFECT EXEMPLAR

If we search for the perfect exemplar of man's divine status we find him in the Saviour and Wayshower, Christ Jesus. In greater measure than any other who has appeared on earth, he exemplified the tremendous possibilities resulting from the understanding of God and man. Jesus knew that God is Spirit, infinite Love, the omnipotent Father. He also knew man's perfect status as the son of God. This knowledge enabled him to destroy the false beliefs about man which seem so completely to environ a mortal, the counterfeit of man.

TRANSFORMATION

But the mortal sense of man will never become eternal. How, then, is this demonstration to be accomplished? By the process of transformation which Paul enjoined upon the Romans, "Be not conformed to this world," that is, cease to accept the testimony of the physical senses as reliable evidence of the truth about man. Cease to believe that material selfhood is man's true state: "but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind."

Transformation is an important factor in the laying hold of eternal life. Now eternal life is not gained by the destruction of our present state of consciousness, for material though it be, it is our present best state of consciousness; and its objectification is the highest sense of man we have yet demonstrated. We live in consciousness, and if we destroy our present state of thought and its embodiment, where shall we dwell? Such destruction would be comparable to the tearing down of the only dwelling we have to shelter us from the inclemency of the weather. Rather let us, in the search for our true selfhood, build over, transform, our dwelling place, our present mental state, little by little, putting a new truth, a true idea, in place of a false belief, of an erroneous thought, until we have developed in consciousness the "house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Thus not by destroying our present state of consciousness, but by transforming it, do we arrive at our true state as the real man. Not through annihilation of our false sense, but rather through the transformation of it, do we gain eternal life.

GOD THE ONLY MIND

Because Mind is infinite, man has no mind separate from God. God as Mind implies divine consciousness, which is infinite, that is, is conscious of all that exists; conscious of its own ideas, infinite in number. Since God is infinite Mind, its manifestation, idea, man, can by no possibility have another mind. There is, there can be, but one infinite Mind. And man, as idea, is its expression. What possibilities of demonstration of divine intelligence rise before us as we contemplate man as the reflection of the infinite, divine consciousness! How unreal seem our limited senses, seen in the light of this revelation! As mankind catches clearer glimpses of this transcendental fact, there will be more so-called intellectual prodigies; moreover, it will then be seen that the prodigy is merely one who is manifesting, perhaps unconsciously, more of his divine prerogative. He is nearer normal than one who accepts a lesser capability. Educational systems based upon the categories of the infinite Mind, as they surely will be in the fullness of time, will deal with spiritual Science, which reveals the infinite capabilities of man as the reflection of that Mind.

ILLUSTRATION OF THE RESULTS

Returning to our study of man: Mrs. Eddy further states that he is "the conscious identity of being as found in Science." What is "identity of being"? That which reveals God, and identifies Him; that which reveals God and makes Him recognizable. How do we know the sun, that is, how do we establish its identity, except through its emanation, its rays? We learn, for example, to distinguish between the rays of the sun, the moon and stars, and the rays of an artificial light, because of certain peculiarities which characterize them. Likewise, we learn to identify God through the qualities expressed in man. And, humanly, all the good which mortals express has its source primarily in God, and is an emanation from Him. While this good, as we see it expressed humanly, partakes in some measure of materiality and its limitations, nevertheless its source is divine. The compassion which Jesus had toward all humanity, the mother-love manifested toward children; the willing sacrifice which parents make for their offspring; the traditional love which bound David and Jonathan, Damon and Pythias; love which has been manifested between mortals countless times less well known, are but reflections of that Love which is divine, though expressed in terms of human experience. These qualities, even when humanly expressed, identify true Being; they help us to understand God.

NOW, AS WE HAVE SEEN, IDENTITY

is that which characterizes an idea and distinguishes it from another. It is the unity and continuity of individuality. Conscious identity is that which is aware of its own existence, which knows itself; then the man as conscious identity of being is a divine idea, which is aware of its own existence as the reflection of Mind, of God, which knows itself. The least idea of divine intelligence rise before us as we contemplate man as the reflection of the infinite, divine consciousness! How unreal seem our limited senses, seen in the light of this revelation! As mankind catches clearer glimpses of this transcendental fact, there will be more so-called intellectual prodigies; moreover, it will then be seen that the prodigy is merely one who is manifesting, perhaps unconsciously, more of his divine prerogative. He is nearer normal than one who accepts a lesser capability. Educational systems based upon the categories of the infinite Mind, as they surely will be in the fullness of time, will deal with spiritual Science, which reveals the infinite capabilities of man as the reflection of that Mind.

TRUE BIOGRAPHY

The four Gospels, which contain the biography of Christ Jesus, tell a story, so marvelous, so compelling, and with so important, that more than any other biography ever written it has been searched and re-searched for the minutest detail that would shed additional light upon his wondrous story. And so perfectly is the story told that those who read it in the light of its spiritual significance behold the Father. God was revealed in the life of Christ Jesus, and he who reads that biography understands God.

THE REAL MAN AND THE FALSE CONCEPT

We have learned, in our brief consideration of man, that mortals are not the children of God, but rather of the falsehood which declares that man sprang from the dust of the ground, or from material embryo. What effrontery, what colossal egotism, for a lying hell-bent mortal to call himself the son of God; to parade in the garments of holiness, when in fact his habiliments are but the things of flesh, to-day here and tomorrow cast into the oven, gone forever. How poor mortals have permitted themselves to be deceived, utterly duped by this bombastic falsifier! This race of Adam was indeed "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity." Could any phase of good, or truth, or reality, think you, originate in so unlikely a source as sin and iniquity? Emphatically not! Thus are we prepared for the disposal as a counterfeit of this contumelious impostor who claims to be man. And what is a counterfeit but a cheat!

But this "mortality" is to be swallowed up of life," of immortality. Not utterly wiped out; not utterly destroyed without possibility of redemption, but transformed through the healing influence of the Christ until the false gives place to the true, the unreal to the real, the material to the spiritual.

Then shall we awake in God's likeness. What, one may ask, are we mortal to be saved, but as the children of God; for as His perfect ideas we are saved now.

And as we come to grasp the truth upon all His beloved sons.

about man, belief in a mortal as man will be transformed to a better belief until we arrive at the understanding of man as the Son of God. That is the awakening in His likeness which the Psalmist declared would satisfy him.

In our brief study of man we have also learned that man is not material, has no physical structure, no corporeality; that this real man is the spiritual and perfect idea of divine Mind, substantial, inseparable from God the Father; that as God's likeness man possesses by reflection all the divine qualities. Now, it is fair to inquire, What practical use can be made of this understanding? This knowing the truth about man enables us to deny the false claims about him. We can believe a falsehood only when we do not know the truth. But when once the truth about anything is learned, the falsity is relegated to the realm of nothingness out of which

When we learn of man, of our true selfhood as spiritual and eternal, existing at the standpoint of perfection from which there is no departure, we are healed of belief in its multifarious forms which may attack it. If believing in disease, we shall be healed through knowing that God's man is never sick. The real man is not in need of healing, for man was never unhealed. God's work was never undone. Man is to be understood and when understood and his present perfect known, every phase of false belief regarding him will disappear forever. How practical, how priceless, then, is the understanding of man as the son of God! Such understanding, moreover, does vastly more than heal mortals of disease; it heals of every sense of discord, of every belief in misery, lack, unhappiness, every phase and form of error which so commonly besets our human footsteps. Gaining a clear understanding of the perfect man ushers us into the fullness of the bounty of God wherein abundance, harmony, peace, eternally abide.

How plain it is that we must gain the consciousness of good, in order to grasp the true concept of man. This is accomplished, it seems, only by earnest and prolonged effort. The material senses must be stilled, and thoughts turned prayerfully to the All-Father, infinite Love, in whom "we live, move and have our being."

Let us begin to claim our true selfhood, our divine inheritance, sonship with God. The most exalted concept which we can entertain regarding man, regarding ourselves, is vastly less than the marvelous, the most wondrous glory which is his. How pitiful, how tragic, that poor humanity stumbles blindly on, accepting so much less than belongs to the children of the household of God! As mortals we are indeed poor prodigals who have been content to companion with swine, to eat the husks of the carob tree, when there is ready and waiting for us the royal bounty of heaven.

Let us hasten back to our Father's house, the building of God, the houses of many mansions, eternal in the heavens, where infinite Love is waiting with open arms to receive us, and forever to cherish us in the holy bonds of pure affection.

The poet truly states,

"He holds us perfect in His love, And we His image bear."

Newport Beach Building Permits Show Increase

GAIN RECORDED IN MONTH, YEAR TO DATE TOTALS

NEWPORT BEACH: Nov. 3.—Showing a gain of more than 10,000 over October of last year, building permits issued here in October amounted to $31,680, according to figures issued by A. M. Nelson, city building inspector. The total for October, 1929, was $21,660.

Building for the first 10 months of 1930 totals $721,220, as compared with $556,785 for the corresponding period of 1929, an increase for this year of $164,425.

Ten months of 1930 shows more building in this city than all 12 months of 1929. The total for all of last year was $591,465, or $129,755 less than 10 months of this year. The year 1929, however, was bigger than 1928 by $117,688.

This year's permits do not include the largest group of buildings erected in the Newport harbor district this year, the Newport harbor union high school, which amounted to about $300,000, the bond issue being for $410,000, and $15,000 being spent for land, nearly $100,000 for equipment and the remainder for buildings.

The high school is located at Fifteenth and Irvine streets, Newport Heights, contiguous to but just outside the city. It is now in operation, and was built by the recently organized Newport harbor union high school district, composed of the Newport Beach and Costa Mesa elementary districts.

Had $300,000 for the high school been included in the city building permits they would have surpassed the $1,000,000 mark before this.

October building here consisted almost entirely of residences. A continuance of high class residential construction during the rest of the year, particularly on Balboa peninsula, is expected.

PORT HEARING, AUTO CAMP TO BE DISCUSSED

NEWPORT BEACH: Nov. 3.—With a hearing on an application to change the harbor lines west of Lido Isle coming up at the city hall Thursday, a plan to beautify the eastern end of the present municipal auto camp, cutting it from the rest of the camp, and various other matters possibly coming up for discussion, the city council will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening.

It is contended that the application for the change in the harbor line, made by the Title Insurance and Trust company of Los Angeles, would interfere with navigation and be otherwise against the interests of the city and particularly of lot owners in Lido Isle and vicinity.

The Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce has joined in a protest to be made against the proposed change, and a special committee, consisting of H. L. Sherman, chairman; Lew Wallace and Secretary G. C. MacLeod is preparing a written protest.

The Rev. Mr. Anderson recently concluded a successful eight-months campaign in Des Moines, Iowa.

FIRST BAPTIST REVIVAL BEGINS IN FULLERTON

FULLERTON: Nov. 3.—Revival services were started yesterday at the First Baptist church with the Rev. Harry O. Anderson, of Alhambra evangelist, author and world traveler in charge.

"The Touchstone of Christianity" was the subject of the Rev. Mr. Anderson at the morning services, while in the evening he discussed "God's Call to Fullerton."

Mrs. Anderson sang at both services and will be at all of the meetings, which will continue for three weeks with meetings every evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Anderson recently concluded a successful eight-months campaign in Des Moines, Iowa.

MIDWAY CITY

MIDWAY CITY: Nov. 3.—Mrs.

John Willingham, who is leaving Midway City within the month for China, where she and Mr. Willingham and daughter, Betty, are to make a new home, was the honor guest at a farewell bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Ray Schureman at her home on Van Buren street, Midway City. The rooms were lovely in Hallowe'en decorations and place cards and favors for the luncheon table and the score cards for the games following were of the same motif. A three course luncheon was served. At cards Mrs. Maurice Price won first prize, Mrs. Zeigler second, and Mrs. J. L. Beaver, consolation.

There had been some agitation for the removal of the camp, and counter agitation for its retention as at present, and the present announced policy is a compromise designed to suit both factions.

The 300 feet to be eliminated from the camp will be beautified and transformed into a park or playground, perhaps eventually into a civic center. The former entrance at Fifteenth street will be closed and an entrance at Nineteenth street maintained.

Huntington Beach Boys Guests For Hallowe'en Party

HUNTINGTON BEACH: Nov. 3.—The Boy Scouts were given a Hallowe'en party Friday night to which all boys of the city over nine years of age were invited. ### PLACENTIA PUPILS PRESENT PROGRAM

PLACENTIA: Nov. 3.—Boys of Miss Runkle's 5-B and 6-B grades at the Bradford avenue school, Placentia, put on an interesting program in the auditorium Friday afternoon.

Little Peggy Martinez and Ralph Cervantes gave a Spanish song and dance. This was a special number from another room. The balance of the program was a group of songs with action, the boys being in costume. Presenting "Pop Goes the Weasel," were Billy Hale, John McIntosh, Jesse De Couch and Ralph Joe Mitchell. "Oh, Mister Moon" was a blackface number by Dale Mackey, Herman Maxey, Frank Romero and Douglas Strickland, with Lawrence Nelson and Hideo Fukuda as dancers. The last number was about Buffalo Bill, with Lowell Sorenson and Donald Dannaham as the principals, while John Reyes and Ned Long were Indian chiefs and Conley Neal and Ralph Hartley were the laughing waters. The finale of the performance was the appearance of Miss Schroeder as a very tall ghost. Assisting with the costumes were two other boys of the room, Clay Biedos and Porphree Costello.

Miss Willis gave her third grade a party for the 4-1 grade, while each of the grades in the primary building had a party and refreshments.

COSTA MESA: Nov. 3.—The clubhouse of the Friday afternoon club presented a colorful scene Wednesday at the Hallowe'en breakfast with its background finish of brown wood, bright orange curtains and lamp shades augmented by many baskets of flowers in harmonious colors of red, orange and the interesting shades in keeping with the Hallowe'en season.

This unusual affair was in charge of the ways and means section, with Mrs. M. O. Wells, chairman, assisted by Miss A. Plumer, Mrs. E. A. Randall and Mrs. R. Stedman, who served a breakfast which brought happy memories of winter breakfasts of childhood days in the New England and middle western states.

Four tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Will Schmelzel, of Laguna Beach, won the first prize, and Mrs. E. Greener, of the Mesa, the consolation.

Guests were present from Laguna Beach, Garden Grove and Newport Beach.

Mrs. D. V. Messing, of Orange

The group quilted a quilt in the afternoon.

BURNS SUFFERED BY BEACH CITY CHILD

CARMEN MCLOONEY: Nov. 3.—Wilber Bonney, principal of Fremont school, has announced plans of Anaheim schools for the observance of American Education week, next week, which is observed each year during the week that includes Armistice day and is sponsored by the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, and the National Educational Association. It begins on Monday and ends on Sunday.

The following themes for each day have been announced: Monday, November 10, The schools and the enrichment of human life; Tuesday, November 11, how schools promote patriotism and world understanding; Wednesday, November 12, the schools of yesterday; Thursday, November 13, the schools of today; Friday, November 14, what the schools have helped America to achieve; Sunday, November 16, the schools of tomorrow and the future of America.

According to Mr. Bonney the important feature of the program is to bring parents into closer contact with schools and especially on Thursday, when it will be brought to bear that the school has become the dominant institution in American life, and the most significant activity of both the state and locality.

The fact that the student council will be taking charge of plans and arranging the program is an important factor.

There are to be three school assemblies during the week. Essays by students in contest form will be featured at one assembly when essays will be read on the subjects of "Schools in the Future" and "What Schools do for Enrichment Time." At a second assembly the Parent-Teacher association will characterize the schools of Anaheim 20 to 30 years ago. A third assembly period will include interesting speakers on patriotism, peace and values of education.

A decorated float depicting New Mexico will be entered by the schools in the Armistice day parade as part of the American Education week program.

DID YOU KNOW THAT?

One of Knute Rockne's choice bits of advice to quarterbacks is: "When in doubt, punt" . . . another is, "Know when not to forward pass" . . . besides teaching football, Knute teaches the players how to take care of themselves physically . . . his advice to linemen is, "Relax while signals are being called and keep on balls of feet" . . . another hunch to aspiring fullbacks is, "Look for a hole, and if it need not be large, as you can make it by plowing through with leg drive" . . . Rockne teaches hard football, but believes in saving his men as much as possible . . . he tells halfbacks to go out of bounds when they are about to be tackled near the sidelines . . . he is continually telling his backs to relax, but one of the points he emphasizes in instructing his men is, "Never relax mentally."

BASEBALL CHATTERS

Taking time out from football, I noticed the other day that Judge Landis went to bat with a post-season decision on farm-out players and it looked like a home run to me. It happened like this:

On the eve of the world series the Brooklyn ball club drafted Jimmy Pattison, former Brooklyn high school pitcher, from the Macon, Ga., club. Brooklyn owns the Macon club, and seemed to have a perfect right to draft the young southpaw if it pleased.

But here's the point: several other big league teams, among them the Giants, were after Pattison, who was subject to draft. The Robins did not need Pattison for 1931, but did not want to see another club grab him. He might turn out to be a star, you know, and that wouldn't be so good.

JUST A GESTURE

Shortly after the draft meeting, the Robins announced that they had withdrawn their claim to Pattison and returned him to draft. The Robins did not need Pattison for 1931, but did not want to see another club grab him. He might turn out to be a star, you know, and that wouldn't be so good.

WHERE THE RUB COMES

Suppose the Giants, or the Pilates who also were after Pattison had drafted him and he turned out to be a sensation in 1931. The young man's fame and fortune would be made. As it is, he has been robbed of a chance to show the big leagues what he has, or at least his chance has been deferred another year. This has happened to promising players time and again.

The judge is to be congratulated on the position he took.

YANKEE PROPERTY

Detroit decided it would not need Pitcher Sam Gibson of Toronto in 1931. The Yankees stepped in and purchased the young man in September. The boys were puzzled for a while that the Yanks should take on a pitcher who had turned down the Tigers.

The other day it was cleared up. The Yanks sent Sam Gibson and Bill Henderson to San Francisco as part payment for Frankie Crosetti, who is to join the Yankees in 1932. Henderson was the player sent to Jersey City by the Yankees last spring, and then brought back so that Lou McEvoy could be sent to California in July. About the time McEvoy arrived on the coast, he was recalled and Henderson sent instead.

You may get from this what chatters minor league ball players are. And how their chances to show their ability in the big leagues often are curtailed for the sake of a trade.

Is it any wonder that after ball players establish their rights to stay in big league company that they hold out for more money? And can you blame them?

DID YOU KNOW THAT?

When Johnny Watwood regained consciousness after being beaten by Malone's fast one in the Sunday game of the Chicago city series, he said he "didn't see the ball after Pat started his throwing motion" . . . The practice of "dusting 'em off" is a part of every pitcher's stuff, but in most cases it is harmless . . . unless the background, a crowd, for instance, is in motion . . . Dazzy Vance's fanned flying sleeve is another instance . . . A Chicago cub fan did Dazzy's strategy one better . . . Taking a seat directly back of the catcher, she waved a newspaper just as Vance delivered each ball . . . He lost the game . . . A baserunner frequently loses sight of a batted ball . . . Cliff Heathcote once lost the ball batted by Hornsby . . . Thinking it was a pop fly, he started back toward first base when the Rajah passed him . . . Hornsby had tripped.

OLD FAVORITES VAN DIEN WINS ON DELHI RING PARKINSON CUP CARD THURSDAY GOLF TOURNEY

All of the old favorites will be back at the Orange County Athletic club next Thursday night, "Pop" Barrett, matchmaker for Proprietor H. T. Foust and the Orange County 40 et 8, announced today.

The Delhi club will offer a 32-round program, consisting of four six-rounders and two four-rounders, with a local or "near local" favorite in every spot.

This arrangement is expected to "set" better with county fans who were thoroughly disgusted last week when the main event, featuring a highly touted imported Mexican "champion," proved a total flop.

Joe Reese, Billy Darnley's clever young Mexican welterweight, who has been fighting main events in San Francisco and other large cities since showing before his townsmen, will fill the main event assignment.

C. F. Smith was first in the "Duffers' Tournament," open only to members with handicaps ranging between 20 and 24. Smith shot 93-24-69. C. P. Boyer was second with 92-22-70; John Martell, 95-22-73, and R. C. McMillan, 97-24-73, tied for third place.

Results of week-end sweepstakes follow:

Match play: Class A-C. W. Jordan, even; H. B. Van Dien, 2 down; J. K. McDonald, 4 down; L. D. Coffing, 4 down. Class B-C. P. Boyer, 2 down; F. W. Chapman, R. C. McMillan, J. W. Beach and R. A. Emison, 3 down.

Medal play: Class A-W. W. Foote, 83-13-70; Ed Holmes Jr., 82-8-74; H. B. Van Dien, 87-12-75; C. R. Furr, 87-12-75. Class B-Walter Vandermast, 80-18-71; H. B. Rapp, 90-16-74; Dr. E. H. Rowland, 93-18-75; Herbert L. Miller, 95-20-75; A. A. Beard, 99-24-75; T. E. Talbert, 95-20-75; M. Wellington, 97-22-75.

Urban Hernandez, ever popular Placentia lightweight, is on the card this week, too. Hernandez claimed he was stale when he lost to Ritchie King so he took a month's rest. He will meet Oral Eubank in the semi-final.

Herman Placentia, an old favorite who has not boxed here this year, will face Pete Saverda, another Filipino, in the feature event.

The rest of the program is Sal (Battling) Ortega vs. Freddie Hawkins; Harry Patrick O'Hannigan vs. Nick Mestas, and Luis Echeveste vs. Eddie Bagio.

SANTA ANA IS 11-6 VICTIM: LAGUNA VICTOR

ALHAMBRA ELEVEN SURPRISE OF RACE

Fresh from a 57 to 0 victory over the Woodrow Wilson Bruins—20 points more than either San Diego or Santa Ana could score against the same competition—Alhambra today loomed as the team to beat for the Coast Preparatory league football championship.

George Ebbets' Moors, made famous in 1928 when Orr Mohler steered them to a Southern California title, are tied with San Diego and Long Beach Poly for first place, Santa Ana being a notch below them as a result of its defeat in San Diego Saturday.

Alhambra still plays Fullerton, San Diego and Long Beach. San Diego meets Alhambra, Glendale and Long Beach. Long Beach faces Pasadena, Santa Ana, Alhambra and San Diego. Santa Ana draws Glendale, Long Beach and Fullerton. The Saints do not face Alhambra this season.

Santa Ana got a run in the first inning and then was blanked until the seventh when it put over a five-run rally on Cate, who had replaced Nelson on the ridge after the third.

Overzealous officials nearly turned the game into a riot in the last half when penalty after penalty was charged against the Dons. Even Phoenix booted the setbacks, which were climaxized by five successive 15-yard penalties. Fortunately for the Dons, Garlock made up the lost yardage and more to spare each time, with Hapes and Schuchardt aiding materially.

The final two allies were marked up in the final stanza. Coach Cook might easily have enlarged the score but preferred to rest his regulars for the Glendale game here Saturday and test the mettle of his reserves. It was "Homecoming Day" for the Phoenix college and Cook might have felt a twang of sympathy for the old grads.

Phoenix Scores on Fumbles

Phoenix scored both its touchfests after fumbled punts, the first in the opening frame after Privett had dropped a kick on his 20-yard line and the next in the second quarter when Phoenix again recovered a punt near the Don goal line. In the meantime, Santa Ana had pounded over three touchdowns in the first half, mainly through the stellar work of Garlock, Hapes and Privett. Kluthe kicked one conversion and Hapes plunged over for the other.

Wayne Garlock, Don Star, Suffers Injury

Wayne Garlock, star back on the Santa Ana junior college football, may be lost to his team for the rest of the season although the extent of a leg injury sustained in the Phoenix game Saturday has not been fully determined to date.

Garlock was taken off the Dons' special team car at Colton on the return trip this morning and rushed to Santa Ana by automobile for medical attention. He was injured in second half when thrown out of bounds. As he crashed to the ground, his leg struck a corner of the players' bench.

J. Ryan started on the mound for Olinda and was relieved by

HILLTOP PASSES CATCH SAINTS NAPPING. 19-12

largely Warburton against Reboin, the two aces handling the ball on more than half the plays.

Hideo Higashi turned in a magnificent game for the Saints, his defensive work at end being especially fine. Higashi shifted from position to position, backfield to line, and in some respects was the best man on the field. Joe Premlinger and Lawrence Lutz, the Saint tackles, and "Toy" Blower, the end who also saw some service in the backfield, were others who played exceptionally.

Al Moore, veteran San Diego tackle, was the best linesman of the day. He broke up more than half of Santa Ana's plays almost single-handed. King Hall, a giant guard; Burchard, another tackle, and Jim Whitley, a fast end who rushed Reboin so fast that much of the effectiveness of Santa Ana's great passing attack was killed, were other San Diego stalwarts.

First Quarter Is Scoreless

The teams played hard but not good football during the scoreless first quarter. Defensive work was so intense that neither side could get started. Blower outkicked Warburton but the latter's amazing speed and shiftness in running back punts more than nullified this advantage and the play was carried on largely in Santa Ana territory, but never very deep until just before the end of the period when "Red" Kidder, the young Saint halfback, rumbled and the Hilltoppers recovered on Santa Ana's 40-yard line.

Unable to gain personally, Warburton faded back and dropped a pass into Whitley's hands on the 9-yard line. Warburton drove to the one-yard line on the first play but fumbled on the very next one when tackled by Pangle and Kidder pounced on the stray sphere on the 5-yard line.

This threat temporarily silenced, the teams took turns kicking and fumbling to each other until the period was almost over.

Then Fury Broke Loose.

Reboin Gets Away

With about four minutes to go, Warburton kicked out of bounds near midfield. Reboin tried a couple of line plays, then shot a pass to Blower on the San Diego 25-yard line. Reboin immediately circled right end for 11 yards. A couple of backs by Pangle drove the ball five yards nearer and then the great Reboin got away from the vigilant Hilltoppers again, this time reeling off 13 yards to a first down but five yards away from the precious goal. Pangle nudged it over on "power plays" in two thrusts over his right guard.

The big crowd was hardly prepared for San Diego's quick retaliation. It started right from the Saint kickoff which Moore brought in to the 32-yard line. McElvain ran the 25 yards around end. Warburton shot a pass for a first down on the Saint 23-yard line and then, with less than a minute to go, faked a run to his right, wheeled around abruptly and hurled a long, accurate pass right into Salmon's bread-basket on the opposite corner of the field. It was a fine effort and one that completely tricked the Saint secondary, especially Halfback Don Crumley, who was defending in that sector.

Score Tied at Half-Time

Warburton's try for the extra point failed too, so the score was 6-6 when the half ended immediately after the kickoff that followed Salmon's touchdown.

Santa Ana scored again about the middle of the third quarter, the 15-yard penalty for roughing after a 16-yard run around end by Warburton giving the Hilltoppers a "first and ten" on the Saint 30-yard mark. Fred Gentles, substitute fullback, and the versatile Warburton took it the rest of the way on orthodox running plays. The Saints bucked up on the 5-yard line and held three times but Warburton scored on a cutback on his fourth and last attempt, then added the extra point with a placekick that split the uprights.

This time it was Santa Ana that retaliated with amazing alacrity. Blower ran the subsequent kickoff to his 48-yard line. Reboin passed to Blower for a first down on San Diego's 37-yard line and Higashi passed to Captain Reboin who zig-zagged all over the field on a 30-yard run to his touchdown. Reboin was off balance when he caught the ball but quickly swung into stride and, changing his pace like the Little master he is, eluded everybody in sight except Warburton, the safety, who was "ironed out" of contention by Reboin's interference. Pangle's try for the point would have tied the score was blocked by Whitley and San Diego led, 13 to 12.

Hilltop Passes Succeed

Play was carried on in Santa Ana territory throughout the fourth quarter, the alert Pangle twice palming down touchdown passes behind his goal, but eventually Warburton whipped one across that caught the Saint secondary napping. This particular one was to Salmon who ran to the Santa Ana 7-yard line before Crumley brought him down from behind. The Saints fought valiantly on their goal-line again but on fourth down, Ted Wilson, the Hilltop captain, plunged across for the touchdown. Warburton's attempted conversion was blocked by Higashi. The contest ended a few plays later.

ST. MARY'S TO PLAY FORDHAM ON EAST GRID

BY VINCENT MAHONEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—

Victors in their annual "Little Big Game," the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's turned their faces east today toward a grassy plot of land in the Bronx where they hope two weeks from now to take some of the drive from the Fordham Ram.

The Gaels emerged from their 13-0 defeat of their historic rivals, Santa Clara, surprisingly free from damages for such a hard fought game. The only serious casualty was Ad Weisberger, guard, suffering from a wrenching knee that may keep him out of uniform for the Fordham game.

The margin of victory rested in the performance of Fred Stennett, half. Throughout most of the first half when attempted power plays and end runs for both teams were piling up behind the line of scrimmage, it was Stennett's hard, high, punting that gradually worked the ball toward Santa Clara's goal, and it was Stennett who fired the pass to Boyle that netted the first touch-

Machado, which Bob Patterson intercepted to gallop 80 yards for a touchdown.

Most of the coast conference leaders idled through "breathers" gathering momentum for next week's struggles. Washington State, the conference bellwether, caught a tarter in down trodden Oregon State, and the Cougars counted themselves lucky eking out a 14-7 win. The Cougars will let down next Saturday, developing reserve strength against Idaho.

Against Montana's game but inert defense, the California Bears worked industrially trying to polish up an offense that will avail in next Saturday's battle with Southern California.

The Trojans also took a rest, their second and third teams working out a 33-13 win over Denver Ram.

Following an unimpressive 20-0 win over U. C. L. A. Friday night, "Pop" Warner worked feverishly with the "Big Red Machine" in preparation for next week when Stanford plays host to Jimmy Phelan's Washington Huskies.

Oregon, the only other unbeaten team in the conference, had no game, "Doc" Spears' Webfeet meet U. C. L. A. next week.

THESE GRANDMAS!

WATERBURY, Conn.—Everyone in the city was looking for Mrs. Abby Stewart Cooley. She had been gone for hours and, being 72 years old, everyone thought something had happened to her. Airplanes were sent up to scour the countryside for her, and boats were sent out in the search. Finally they found Mrs. Cooley, cooling off in a solo swim three miles out in the ocean.

KREG today inaugurated on its morning program two new features which are expected to increase the popularity of the station. The first was a broadcast by Mary Burke King, associate editor of the Register, of a book review. Mrs. King conducts the book review page of the Register. Her talk was on the air from 10:45

SANTA ANA 'Y' POPULAR PLACE FOR MEETINGS

That the Y. M. C. A. building in Santa Ana is a popular place for public assembly was indicated today by the report of last week's activities, issued by Secretary R. C. Smedley.

In addition to a very full program of regular Y. M. C. A. features, there are numerous meetings each week in the building, held by a variety of organizations. The policy of the Y. M. C. A. is to provide a meeting place for any group of local people meeting for any proper and reasonable purpose.

Last Monday evening brought the dinner meeting of the Junior College Y. M. C. A., a public reception in the lobby in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Moffett Rhodes, the meeting of the Orange County Association of School Coaches, and a swimming party of Friendly Indians from the Orange neighborhood.

Tuesday, being ladies' day at the Y. M. C. A., carried a smaller list of activities, but that evening saw the regular meeting of the 20 men in the Y. M. C. A. class in public speaking, and a meeting of the Law Enforcement League.

Wednesday evening, there were the regular usual meetings at dinner of the Toastmasters Club and the Dormitory Men's Club and, in addition, there was a rehearsal of the Santa Ana City band in the boys' lobby, a meeting of the degree team of the DeMolay in another room, and a workout of the Scouting drill team on the playground, while the committee of management of the church basketball league held a session planning its season's schedule.

Thursday evening, attention was concentrated in the travel talk by Harry W. Lewis in the lobby, and Friday evening, the discussion of the propositions to be voted next Tuesday was the center of attraction, as the matters were discussed by Hoarse Head, Mrs. J. D. Campbell, W. F. Croddy and others. At the same time, about 100 boys were having a hilarious Halloween party in another part of the building.

The coming week promises to be just about as busy a time as the past week, from the events which are already scheduled on the calendar.

Addresses Heard Yesterday In Santa Ana Churches

'CLEANING OUT OLD WELLS' IS SERMON TOPIC

PASTOR TELLS EIGHT WAYS TO BLOCK DIVORCE

The Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene addressed his congregation yesterday morning on the theme, "Cleaning Out Old Wells," the scriptural text being Genesis, 26:18, "And Isaac digged again the wells of water which they had digged in the days of Abraham, his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham." The music during the day was directed by the assistant pastor, Rev. Hugh C. Benner. Miss Ruth Sweeney, soprano, sang a special arrangement of "Jesus Lover of My Soul," at the morning service.

"Wells, in the days of Isaac," said the Rev. Mr. Harding, "had a greater significance than today, being a part of the deed of possession for the property as well as the chief element of interest in it. By filling the wells which had been dug by Abraham, the Philistines had ruined or made void the title to that property on which they were situated. It is a difficult task to open old wells, but this seems to be the task of the Church of the Nazarene. If we, as a denomination, should leave out of our message the vital fundamentals of the Christian faith and should preach some new doctrine or 'ism' we could probably attract a large following with little difficulty. But God has called us to a different mission."

"We have no apology to offer for our position on the great truths of Christianity which have come down to us as a priceless heritage from our forefathers. We are convinced that the hope of the world lies not in the use of weak words and weak methods, but in a return by the church of Jesus Christ to the 'mourners' bench' and the real spiritual experience which resulted from definitely seeking God. We must call men to a repentance which means a deep sorrow for sin. We must preach the reality of sin, of the judgment, the necessity of salvation, and the atonement of the divine Christ, apart from whom there can be no solution for the sin problem. The wells of these eternal truths have been well-nigh stopped and must be opened to a weary, thirsty world."

At the evening service Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Kinne, of Los Angeles, were the special speakers. They recently returned to the United States from China where Rev. Mr. Kinne has been directing the construction of the Bresee Memorial Hospital at Taimingtu, erected to the memory of Dr. P. F. Bresee, founder of the Church of the Nazarene. Mrs. Kinne is a daughter of Dr. Bresee. Music for this service was provided by Mrs. U. E. Harding, soprano, and Mrs. H. J. Hart, contralto, who sang, "Yes I Know," (Lehman).

Golden Wedding Day Was Celebrated In Happy Fashion

Several delightful surprise features marked a brilliant college dance held Saturday night at Newport Harbor Yacht club, where the demure young co-eds of the Sisterhood of Spinsters, complimented their friends.

The semi-formal function was a dinner dance with an excellent orchestra to lure the guests into the maze of the dance. The dinner appointments included clever place cards of tiny kewpies wearing green and white checked aprons and spectacles, and each one guarding a dance program bound in green and white checks. Larger kewpies in the same Spinsterish garm, packed down the center of the table amidst Hallowe'en and autumnal decorations.

Enjoying the happy affair were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Sundquist, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Livespise, Miss Betty Maloney, James Privett, Miss Ada Marie Hendrickson, Roderick Smiley, Miss Margery Adams, George Blewette, Miss Marjorie Walton, Warner Schultz, Miss Margaret Wilson, Leonard Morris, Miss Helen Hendricks, Wayne Flinn, Miss Mary Todd Tate, Bob Chapman, Miss Grace Marcher, Miss Nelle Grafton, Don Harrison, Miss Grace Skinner, Abbott Mason, Miss Wilma Patterson, Blanchard Beatty, Miss Bernice Summers, Vern Banks, Miss Bernice Keller, Joe Warner, Miss Helen Spangler, Truscott Lindsey, Miss Mary Isch, George Griffith, Miss Betty Wiswall, Erich Reina, Miss Lorretta Spanker, Ralph White, Miss Frances Vieira, Jack Brown, Miss Hazel Gilbert, Herb Strohsmen, Miss Adahruh Ellis, Toby White and Bill Danner.

Five children were born of the marriage, Mrs. Annie B. Collins, Mrs. Louisa M. Roberts, J. Henry Lippatti, Lionel J. Lippatti and Leslie H. Lippatti, all of whom with their families, were present to share the happy golden wedding day of their parents. The families included four grandchildren, Margaret, Lionel James, Phillip and Harold. An interesting feature was the presence of J. L. Collins of 921 Garfield street, the only guest who was privileged to have attended the wedding 50 years ago.

After a sumptuous turkey dinner given for members of the family and a limited number of close family friends, a reception was held throughout the afternoon and evening, for scores of friends who called to tender their congratulations and good wishes to the happy couple. There were many beautiful gifts especially of flowers, chiefly great golden chrysanthemums, and Golden Emblem and Claudius Pernet roses. The latter included a gift of roses sent by a niece living in Toronto, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Lippatti left their native England many years ago, and have called California their home for the past 30 years.

College Girls Spend Happy Week-end In E. W. Retreat

A carefree week-end of glorious fun was spent under the huge oak trees beside the most delightful stream of ice-cold water at the Y.W.C.A. camp. Camp Emma Otis, near Modjeska's home, where members of the Santa Ana junior college Y.W.C.A. rode and hiked to the secluded retreat.

Arriving late Friday evening after hiking up the long trail by moonlight to the cabins, the hours were spent until midnight before the big fireplace. Snatches of sleep and star gazing completed the night.

Hiking up to Modjeska's lake was the program outlined for Saturday morning and was thoroughly enjoyed. Five of the more venturesome girls broke a seemingly impossible trail around the lake when returning to the trail. Catching up on lost sleep, playing cards, short hikes and letter writing completed the day with a huge fire in the cabin before which an impromptu duel with short sticks representing swords was fought and spooky stories told.

Typical peace and quiet pervaded the Sabbath with the interlude of a short hike up the creek.

Forgetting studies and cares for two happy days were the Misses Dulcie Green, Velma Witt, Marcia Elliott, Vernelle Butler, Ruth Brubaker, Louella Marshall, Evelyn Parks, Gladys Earley, Elizabeth Rinker, Audrey Teel, Jean Anderson, Zelma Smith, Elva Cook, Miss Lavina Compton, and the chaperons, Mrs. A. M. Brubaker of Orange, Mrs. John Tessmann and Miss Mable Whiting.

This initial November festivity will be the bridge evening with Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Mateer and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Van Meter as hosts. Playing will begin at 8 o'clock and will feature tables for those who prefer contract. Punch and wafers will be served during the card session, which will close with the award of the unusually attractive prizes selected for the affair.

The monthly bridge afternoon is dated for Friday, the 21st, with Mrs. A. F. LeGaye and Mrs. Walter Pixley as co-hostesses. Play will begin at 2 o'clock, but those who prefer may seek the clubhouse in time for luncheon which will be served in the solarium. Reservations in advance are asked for both these affairs.

Friday night, November 28 has been reserved for the monthly dance, which is certain to be a gay and colorful affair, as so many college students will be home for the Thanksgiving holiday, and are expected to be present. Expectant Mother Should Eat Plenty of Vegetables

I don't know where the saying originated that each baby costs the mother a tooth—but if it does it is the mother's fault, not an immutable law of nature. During the period of gestation the child does draw on the mother's bony structure if her diet deprives the child of the mineral elements needed for its growth before birth, and only then can such a ridiculous saying have any truth in it.

I don't know why the pregnant woman thinks of herself as something set apart and for whose benefit all laws should be thrown in the discard. She is simply taking her place in the endless chain of biological events and should accept the fact as such and do her best to make a first class job of bringing a healthy child into the world. She should see her doctor early and follow his advice as to exercises, diet, etc., take on weight if he thinks it advisable and in all ways conduct herself as a sensible woman.

To be well, and to have healthy baby, the expectant mother should eat plenty of cooked leafy vegetables containing iron and lime, phosphorus and a few more mineral elements needed to grow fine bodies. Spinach, tomatoes, celery, lettuce, cauliflower, delicately cooked cabbage are a few of the best of these vegetables. Among the fruits nothing beats orange. Breads should be largely of the bran variety, milk and butter should be used liberally, eggs and meat according to a doctor's orders.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Fig Salad

8 large dry figs
Water to cook
1 package cream cheese
2 tablespoon thick cream
Salt, pepper, paprika to taste
Canned pimento to garnish
French fruit salad dressing
Lettuce

Keep on hand a couple of pounds of fancy dried figs; you will find many uses for them. This is one.

Soak the figs overnight in water to cover, simmer till tender, allowing the water to evaporate. Cool the figs, make slit in each and with a teaspoon scoop out some of the figs. Mash the cream cheese, season highly and mix with the thick cream, whipping it until very smooth and soft. Spread the split fig apart, fill with cheese and press lightly together and again chill well.

At serving time have some good French dressing made with plenty of lemon and grapefruit juice, arrange lettuce hearts on plates, cut each chilled fig in half and arrange the two halves on the lettuce. Pour dressing over and garnish with a spoonful of whipped cream mixed with what is left of the cheese filling. A dash of paprika completes the garnishing and strips of pimientos are laid over the whipped cream.

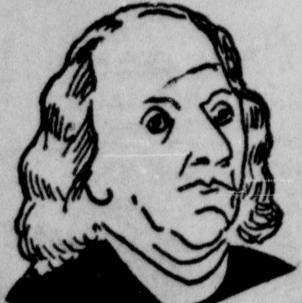

Allowing one fig to each serving the calory value per portion will be around 175. This is NOT a dinner salad—it is too rich—but it is ideal for a small luncheon or for a home supper party.

Expectant Mother Should Eat Plenty of Vegetables

Co-hostesses Present Pretty Dinner Party For Friends

One of the week's prettiest events was a dinner party given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Nelson, 611 Minter street, when Mrs. Nelson (Jeanette Hammerstead) and Mrs. Charles P. Atwood (Evelyn Gredler) joined in entertaining for a group of close friends including the girls in Department 3 at Rankin's.

Both hostesses were popular brides of the past few months, and were complimented at various pre-nuptial events, and their entertaining was a gracious little return for some of the delightful courtesies extended them.

The tables where the guests were seated for the enjoyment of a most delectable dinner menu, presented an arresting study in yellow and black. For the charming topaz crystal service used, included candlesticks which were used with slender dinner tapers in black. Fluffy golden 'mums' were the flowers chosen to accent the color scheme.

After-dinner hours were given over to a series of games, but chief interest seemed to lie in the lively chat as the guests enjoyed their reunion away from office hours.

Mrs. Atwood and Mrs. Nelson had as their guests, Mesdames Elmer Thompson, R. H. Barnard, Oniska Orndoff, Roy C. Kidder, Geoffrey Wilde, Roy Yoder, F. J. Herschiser, Margaret Richardson, Walter Gredler, and the Misses Ruth Sanford, Margaret Bowen, Evelyn Sherbert, Dorothy Osborn, Mildred Lukens, Jane Crawford, and Peggy Frick.

Birthday Surprise Honored Mrs. O'Brien

Complimenting the birthday anniversary of Mrs. James O'Brien which occurred Friday, was a delightful little surprise party given by a group of her friends after choir practice in the community hall of the Christian church, which had been prettily adorned with autumn flowers.

Mrs. Grace Pierce, on behalf of the guests, presented the honoree with a lovely big salad bowl. The evening was pleasantly passed with Hallowe'en games and stunts, and was concluded with the serving of sandwiches, pumpkin pie and coffee.

Those present included the honoree, Mrs. James O'Brien and Mr. O'Brien, Messrs. and Mesdames A. E. Taylor, A. L. Crasher, Willard Brady, J. E. Redmond, W. P. Haghrop, E. H. Elmer, Mrs. Grace Pierce, Mrs. Meiba Wood and Mrs. C. G. Jenkins.

Garlock Home Was Bridge Setting

Mrs. H. O. Garlock was honored Thursday afternoon to members of the Two Table Bridge club of Costa Mesa and Santa Ana, entertaining in her home at 511 South Flower street. Mrs. Florence Hicks scored high in the game of the afternoon.

At a late hour the hostess served dainty refreshments to Mrs. Emma Wells and Mrs. Sadie Paton of Costa Mesa, Mrs. Alvin McMullen, Mrs. T. B. McMullen, Mrs. Yackel, Mrs. Herman Smith and Mrs. Florence Hicks of this city.

WHEN THE CAT'S AWAY—

LISBON—Health authorities of this city failed to take into consideration the well-known rule of "survival of the fittest." Consequently, when an order was sent out to exterminate all the cats in the city, they weren't prepared to meet the horde of rats which came out on the streets boldly after their feline enemies had been killed off. Now the authorities have another problem on their hands.

While riding in the pony cart wee Scouty said, "Say, it's an art to drive this thing the way I do. I never need a whip to make a little pony go, because the pony seems to know that I will treat him nicely when he's giving us a trip."

"Oh, well, admit you're pretty good, but please don't brag. I knew you would," replied another Tiny. "Just be sure you drive all right. The pony may decide to run like everything. That won't be fun. We'd hit some bumpy pavements and be tossed right out of sight."

Just then the Travel Man yelled, "Hey! You Tinymites drive back this way. I think I have a happy hunch that ought to please you all. Just pull the reins toward the right, but, goodness, not with all your might!" Poor Scouty pulled so hard it almost made the pony fall.

But they returned and then their friend, the Travel Man, said, "This will end the pony riding for today."

EVERYTHING IS ALL RIGHT WITH FARMERS' CLUB

MARION, Va., Nov. 3.—(UPI)

—Acting on the theory that depression is largely state of mind, radio station WJAG, voice of the "Printers Devil," and the Norfolk Daily News, has started a war on pessimism.

Several thousand members are already listed on the station's "Everything Is All Right" club roster and membership cards are being sent out by the hundreds daily. Cars in northern Nebraska have been placarded with stickers reading: "Everything Is All Right."

And it all began when someone poked fun at an embarrassed farmer who came to the radio station and, in speaking over the station's equipment, assured the folks at home "I got here all right."

Other farmers visiting the station adopted the same phrase and letters of comment resulted.

Then came the suggestion from Wichert, wealthy farmer, suggesting a club to show the world that Nebrascans and particularly Nebraska farmers are not pessimists.

"Farmers are reputed to be always complaining," he said. "We complain when it rains too much. We complain when it's dry. So let's change the complaint to a sermon of optimism—'Everything Is All Right.'"

All this occurred before the stock market crash. Then came the drought. Still the daily message "Everything Is All Right" went out from station WJAG.

Karl Stefan, chief engineer, put the question to a vote and Wichert, became the club's first president.

Club members were pledged to fight pessimism and preach optimism. The pass word "Qulturblaskin" was adopted.

The novel thing about the radio feature, Stefan says, has been the reaction of farmers. The club was suggested by a farmer and the ma-

BUENA PARK

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Middleton and son, Herbert, of Stanton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Middleton, of West Eleventh street, this week.

The meeting of the Buena Park Chamber of Commerce scheduled for Tuesday evening has been postponed owing to the mass meeting called for Monday evening and the fact that Tuesday is election day. The next meeting will be November 18, when directors will be elected.

A study circle in connection with the Grand Avenue P.T.A. was organized at a meeting held in the home of the president, Mrs. F. M. Ensign, on Homewood avenue. The book, "Character Training," will be taken up under the leadership of Mrs. G. W. Corey. The meetings are to be held in one of the classrooms at the school on the first and third Tuesday from 8:30 to 4:30. The first meeting will be November 4.

The Buena Park sanitary board held a special meeting Thursday evening, when a petition for annexation to the district was presented by property owners of lots 16, 17 and 18, and a portion of lot 1 in the Calway tract.

The three board members present, J. F. Simpson, Jack Golden and Oscar West, favored the annexation but delayed formal action until the regular meeting, November 10.

The area seeking admission includes the Buena Park laundry.

Miss Elmore Pickering will be in charge of the grounds, and Mrs. Charles Vernon was appointed jority of its members, gained during months when drought threatened crops and livestock, are farmers.

All expense of the club is borne by the radio station. The club membership cards and stickers carry no advertising matter. So great has become the demand for cards and stickers that the presses are far behind. Several community clubs in Nebraska have had their own placards printed and posted them throughout the community.

Gene Huse, editor and publisher of the Norfolk Daily News, founded the station in 1922, dedicating it to the service of its listeners. It has as its policy inauguration of original idea yearly.

"DO YOU KNOW THAT PAID JEFFREY WORKERS have been circulating false and misleading statements * * * *"

"Do you know that one of these workers, Harry King, admitted THAT HE WAS PAID BY JEFFREY LEADERS to make these statements, all of which he declared he did not know were untrue. All of which are falsehoods used to discredit Lucas."

Now I, Harry King, hereby state, under oath, that the charges quoted above are false and untrue in every particular. I also state, under oath, that STUART H. # GRAND JURIES ENDORSE SAM JERNIGAN

For 24 years Sam Jernigan has served Orange County as a Peace Officer. For 8 years he has held the office of Sheriff. With a single exception every Grand Jury has praised the work of Sheriff Sam Jernigan. That exception was in respect to two employees whose services immediately were terminated after the grand jury so recommended. The single instance mentioned is the only one in 21 years that the opponents of Mr. Jernigan are using or could use in this campaign to impair the standing of Sheriff Sam Jernigan. The opposition remains silent as to the commendations the Sheriff has received from Grand Jury after Grand Jury. The voter does not need to remain in doubt as to Sheriff Sam Jernigan's fine record. It is herewith endorsed by either foreman or chairman of Grand Juries who have investigated the office. Read the statement and then give Sam Jernigan your endorsement at the polls tomorrow—Tuesday, November 4.

WHAT GRAND JURIES HAVE SAID ABOUT SHERIFF SAM JERNIGAN SINCE THE BEGINNING OF HIS ADMINISTRATION:

1923*1924*1925*1926*1928*1929

To the Jernigan for Sheriff Club:

Gentleman—Any attempt on the part of an aspirant to public office to gain his election through the influence of and the names of Orange county should and undoubtedly will be understood by the level headed tax-payers of the county.

Orange county enjoys a most enviable reputation throughout the entire state for being one of the best regulated law abiding counties in the state. Sheriff Jernigan's efficient administration of the Law Enforcement Department under his jurisdiction for the past eight years, is in a large measure responsible for this, and it is to be remembered that the aspirations of any individual or group should put in jeopardy the good name of Orange county.

As Foreman of the Grand Jury of 1923 it was my duty to thoroughly investigate the Sheriff's office. The report of those findings is a matter of record. The efficient and fearless manner which Mr. Jernigan was conducting the affairs of that office could warrant only words of praise and compliment.

The manner in which he enforcement has been carried on since that time warrants the vote of every taxpayer who believes in awarding the services of a faithful public servant. I most heartily endorse the candidacy of Sam Jernigan, Sheriff, for re-election.

(Signed) D. EYMAN HUFF,
Foreman Grand Jury, 1923.

To the Jernigan for Sheriff Club:

The use of my name by certain "Jackson Supporters," in an ad purporting to be an ad for Mr. Jackson by the Grand Jury of 1927 is most misleading to the public.

I do not subscribe to such methods and want the voters to know that I most heartily endorse the candidacy of Sheriff Sam Jernigan for re-election.

Respectfully,
(Signed) WM. C. MAY,
Member Grand Jury for 1927.

The same Grand Jury of 1927 for Orange County, in regular session some ninety days after their recommendations for change in personnel of the Sheriff's Office, reported most favorably upon the condition of that department.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Mr. Sam Jernigan, Sheriff of Orange County, Santa Ana, Calif.

Dear Sheriff—I desire to compliment you, and at the same time thank you for the able and efficient manner in which you have handled federal prisoners committed to the Orange county jail during the past eight years.

During the past year or two it has been somewhat difficult to find suitable accommodations for the confinement of federal prisoners sentenced to short terms, and it is particularly gratifying to know that you are always willing to accept these prisoners in any number any time of the day or night.

Again thanking you and wishing you every success in the coming election, I remain,

A. C. SITTEL, United States Marshal.

EVENING SALUTATION

"Unless they want a return of the traffic in hard liquor, the law needs no change."
—Representative Franklin W. Fort, New Jersey.

THE WAY OF LIFE

Elderly and middle-aged people frequently deplore the follies of the younger generation. They see the fast set with their "cheek-to-cheek" dances, and observe immodest dressing among the young women. They deplore the extravagance of the young people as they spend money for sweets and amusements and dress, and they find fault generally with them for frivolity and shallowness.

Yet, in all ages, the older people have thus deplored the ways of those who were to succeed them. As far as extravagance goes, it should be remembered that formerly the majority of young people spent their vacations in idleness. Now most of them are doing useful work. It must be admitted that family ties seem loose now. There are many divorces for frivolous reasons. Yet, it may well be doubtful if there are more moral lapses than in previous periods.

There is always a great deal of foolishness and wickedness, and always has been. People ought not to rest satisfied unless they have done their best to bring about higher standards. And powerful social agencies are working for such improvements, that did not previously exist.

The women's clubs, the boys' and girls' clubs are a tremendous force working against all these decadent tendencies, and there are many others. So people ought to use all these good forces as a means for reducing the ever present evil and foolishness of the world. Human folly brings human suffering, and sensible people can be made to see it. Every club and church and school should be a center from which should flow helpful influences. We cannot help young people much by denouncing their errors. The best way is to give them incentives to good work and healthful interests. Then they won't have time or energy for wrong courses, and won't be so much interested in the evil of the world.

STILL IN TWO FORTS

It appears that Miss Mary Garden and Gene Howe each hold their respective forts still, even though they did "break bread" together. In Mr. Howe's column when Miss Garden appeared in Amarillo, Texas, some time ago, he said that she was "Too old to sing," that she "tottered about on the stage." But she was scheduled for a return engagement in Amarillo. Howe wrote and asked her to have supper with him. She accepted for "tea."

Now the "tea" is a thing of the past, but Miss Garden still is to make her reply to the statement in the columns. It is reported that she is planning to "rip his hide."

The singer has rare poise. If she could keep a social engagement with Mr. Howe, at his home, after the unforgivable things he said, she proves herself a woman in millions. She is meeting Mr. Howe in his own style of combat. Yet one wouldn't be surprised to learn that it is all a publicity stunt.

Football and Neckties

Christian Science Monitor

This picture of one of the ablest football coaches in the country looking admiringly around the training table to see that neckties—all of them—are on straight, even though there are no fans present, is some indication of the refinements of present-day football.

Coach Lou Little of Columbia University is insisting upon the Beau Brummell type of football player. This attitude, in view of Columbia's somewhat unsatisfactory performance this year, might cause some to quote the adage that handsome is as handsome does; that it doesn't do to lay too much emphasis on a football player's looking beautiful! But Coach Little's earlier record at Georgetown should remove any suspicion that he does not believe in "hard football." Most emphatically, he does. A neat appearance, in his opinion, is by no means a substitute for the playing of a "neat" game, but is its supplement.

The attractive light-blue suits with their inserts of darker blue which the Columbia team is wearing this year were subjected to the critical eye of this coach before being seen in public. Suits, headgear and shoes were carefully inspected according to the individual measurements of the wearer. To a degree that would have been scoffed at by the typical coach of ten years ago, these things were ordered to fit with exactness.

"The schools today," Coach Little said, "are realizing that a man feels a good deal better in a uniform that fits him well, and that, feeling better, he plays a better game." He did not assert, however, that color harmonies promote teamwork, and it is not impossible that this phase of the Brummellian scheme involves good showmanship more than good playing.

Coach Little's strict rules for appearance and conduct are enforced even during "after practice" hours. Some attention to manners, cleanliness and neatness of appearance is demanded of each player reporting at the training table. Coach Little believes the improvement goes deeper than mere externals, and that "a better sense of sportsmanship, a finer evidence of fellowship, both before big games and after them, is evident among almost all football players today." Certainly some "civilizing" of football will not hurt the game.

Fate of a Forgotten Two Million Dollars

San Francisco Chronicle

A saddening thing in recent days was the official bulletin telling that there is something like $2,000,000 in the banks of New York waiting claimants. It does seem like downright carelessness. One hates to think of those two million orphans or foundlings or whatever they are kept from nice, comfortable, appreciative homes by some heartless technicality of the law requiring proof of parentage.

Not that the sum in itself is so great. As a matter of curiosity we would like to know the aggregate contents of a certain type of bag the owner of which is never sure whether it was left in the back seat of the car, on the counter at the five-and-ten or in the dressing room at the woman's club. Of course, we mean the money contents and are not interested in statistics as to compacta, recipes clipped from newspapers or receipts from last year's news dealer.

But, getting back to New York's mislaid bank deposits, we find that one of the accounts was for the "Song Writers' Sickness and Benefit Fund." That certainly is puzzling. We should think there would have been heavy drafts on that account. Our impression of the popular songs as they come to us over the air is that the writers of most of them must have been very sick.

BEWARE OF LAST MINUTE RUMORS

It has become increasingly apparent that seldom has it been so necessary to caution the voter against last-minute rumors and attacks against any candidate, as it is today. False stories spread about at the last minute, too late to refute, are the most unsportsmanlike thing which can be attempted. They are the one thing which hang over after an election in the form of bitterness and hatred.

The rule which should be followed is that those who have made up their minds, during the weeks of this campaign on the candidates should not change their minds the last day or two before the campaign without exercising exceeding care. Particularly is this true if they are influenced to change their minds because of some story or purported statement of fact which has reached them during these last few hours before they go to the polls.

Stories are deliberately put out at that hour so that they cannot be refuted. The candidate is placed at an overwhelming disadvantage because there is not time to answer the charges. It is deplorable when a candidate's friends are influenced against him, by the unfair tactics of his opponent, the last day.

Discount rumors which come to you, particularly by word of mouth. A check-up would prove many of them without foundation. You may be sure, since they have just reached you, that a check-up would reveal that they are without foundation. It is a safe assumption to make, because if they could not be refuted, why would it have been left until the last minute to start them off? Here, again, of course, you may think that they are statements you have just heard, which have been abroad for weeks, and gone unrefuted.

Heed this word of caution: Have faith in the judgment you formed during the past few weeks and do not go back on the opinion you formed when the tempo of the campaign was more reliable.

The Beebe expedition in Bermuda has discovered an elastic fish. It is not a new discovery if it refers to the kind which snap at bait.

PROPOSITION A AND B

Two county propositions appear on the ballot which is to be voted tomorrow. Both are provisions for the Orange County Fair. The first proposition "A," provides for the purchase of the property now used for the County Fair. There are arguments on both sides of this proposition which are good. The site in use now, is centrally located. Furthermore, it is already somewhat developed. But, on the other hand cheaper land can be purchased. The size of the proposed site stands against it. The Orange County Fair can never be the large expansive fair which is the glory of other counties on the limited site. If we plan for the future the fair ground, when it is permanently located, should be in such a place that there would be room to build for the future, and parking facilities.

The second proposition clearly should not be passed. It would authorize a budget of twenty-five thousand dollars annually for the fair, to begin after the purchase of a site. To vote twenty-five thousand dollars per annum in perpetuity for any purpose would not be good sense. If this proposition is passed, the obligation will remain upon the taxpayer. The taxpayer who is so carefully watching his expenditures in other directions will have only very remote control over the expenditure of $25,000 the year a fair site is purchased, and the year after that, and the year after that and the year after that. The twenty-five thousand dollars, as a matter of fact, will tend to discourage attempts to make the fair self-supporting. Carefulness and business sense are balanced against this Proposition B.

New York is reported projecting the search for its missing judge to the moon in hopes of identifying a certain crater.

VOTE WITHOUT FAIL TOMORROW

Practically the last word has been said to the electorate upon issues and candidates. Where there is confusion it is probably too late to clear it up. Those who have determined upon a wrong position will at this hour maintain that position until the end.

But there is one appeal which we would make to every voter. Regardless of how you intend to vote, whether for Mr. Westover or Mr. Collins, or Mayor Ralph or Mr. Young, whether wet or dry, go to the polls tomorrow and exercise your right of suffrage, your power of sovereignty in the manner that your mind and your conscience dictates.

Next to winning for all the causes in which we believe, we would be gratified over the fact that the men and women of Orange county and its environs valued their suffrage to such a degree that they would allow nothing to separate them from the act of exercise. A person who refuses, or who from indifference, neglects to vote, is unfit to be an American citizen. In a sense they are unfit to be free. The exercise of voting is a matter of importance to freedom and self-government.

You have had the arguments and reasons presented to your minds. Other people have been telling you, but now you compose the court. You are both the judge and the jury. It is for you to be able to tell the world and render your decision in harmony with your conception of righteousness and justice. Do not fail to vote.

More Truth Than Poetry

SONG OF AN ANTI

I prefer, of a Sunday, to sit at my ease
And indulge in profound meditation;
Propelling small balls from the pimples, called tees,
I regard as a dull recreation.
So Sabbath Day golfing I sternly oppose,

With bitter resentment I view it;
Not for pleasure or pelf would I do it myself,
And I don't want my neighbors to do it.

It is quite for their good that I want them to be
In all of their habits exactly like me.

I do not like whiskey; I don't care for beer,
As a youngster it filled me with fury
Half a block down the street that I lived on to hear
The trucks rumbling out of a brewery.
Champagne and sauterne both are equally bad,
With hemlock and strychnine I link them,

Both are baneful to me in the highest degree,

And I don't want my neighbors to drink them.

I am perfectly sure they would get along fine
If they only would pattern their lives upon mine.

At twenty I sampled my first cigarette,
Which I got from a big brutal brother,
And it made me so nervous and sick and upset
That I never have lighted another.
I watch people puffing the dreadful things now

And wonder the fumes do not choke them.

Their poisonous reek makes me wobbly and weak,

And I don't want my neighbors to smoke them.

I am filled with dismay when around me I find

That millions of people are not of my mind!

What marvelous football would be played if the teams could only get as enthusiastic as the radio announcer.

The Thriftiest Kind of Thrift

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Thrift is sometimes wasteful. Right now, for the nation as a whole, thrift is very wasteful. The nation is saving money and wasting men. That kind of economy is rank extravagance.

Business is now twenty per cent below normal. With business at that low level for one year, the country would lose at least twenty billions—twenty billions of wealth which the country is fully equipped to produce!

That wealth will not be produced until there is a market for it. We cannot use our productive equipment—our idle men and machines—except by spending fifty million dollars a day more than we are now spending.

Right now, the more money we save, the more wealth we lose. That does not excuse foolish spending. That does not justify any government—federal, state or local—in employing men to do nothing.

The city which hired a squad of men to carry stones across the road, and then hired another squad to carry the stones back, suffered a stupid and needless waste.

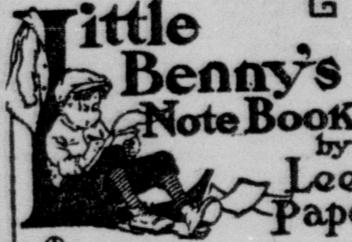

President Hoover announces that he has cut 67 millions from the proposed federal budget. If he has cut out useless items, that is real economy. But if he has cut down TOTAL federal expenditures, that is real waste. This is no time for retrenchment. The true economy, in a business depression, is to make two useful sys grow where one useless outlay grew before.

Now, at this time, real thrift consists in saving a public dollar on one item in the budget, and spending two public dollars on another item.

The time to cut down government expenditures is in the period of prosperity which will surely come, if we spend freely now.

The thriftiest kind of thrift is wise spending.
